Croce Commercial Cars

PAUL BUCK
HOME MADE NOODLES

15 20 Cwt. Truck. Price Complete £250.

The success of the business man depends upon the management of his business, and that is why the wise business man does not buy a cheap car, but a car that has long life. The car which lasts only for a couple of years or so is too dear at any price. The car that runs for ten years is the car that will make a success of his business, and because he can always depend upon it to be on the job when wanted, his working expense is reduced to one-half.

Investigate the Croce truck, the way it is constructed, the parts that are in it, and you will find that a better car was never produced at any price. It is specially and solely made and constructed for the delivery business, strongly built for wear and tear and the hard service to which a truck is subjected.

This car has merits which will only be known by the buyer when he is using one. It is produced to last ten years or more.

SEQUEL TO BOXING MATCH.

The death of Sapper Louis Hood, a boxer, of Smethurst, at the National Sporting Club, London, early yesterday morning after a boxing contest with Charlie Hardcastle, had a sequel at Bow street, London, yesterday afternoon, when Hardcastle, whose age was given as 22, and who was described as a miner, of Worsboro' Bridge, Barnsley, and Frederick Bettinson, manager of the Club; J. H. Douglas, referee; Zarega timekeeper; Jabez White, Hood's second, and John Goodwin, Hardcastle's second, were charged with being concerned together in the manslaughter of Hood.

Divisional Inspector Ashley said that at nine o'clock that morning he went, with Sub-Divisional Inspector Evans, to the National Sporting Club at Covent Garden, where he saw the body of Hood. Shortly afterwards he took possession of two pairs of boxing gloves. At one o'clock that afternoon he saw the defendants at Bow street Police Station, and charged them with being concerned in the manslaughter of Hood. The charge was read over to them, and they made no reply.

Defendants were remanded for a week on their own recognisances.

DOW'S PORT

DUBLIN CASTLE RED CROSS HOSPITAL.

A meeting of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was held on Monday afternoon at the Castle Hospital. Mr. William M. Murphy, J.P., Chairman, presided, and the following were present:—Miss Mulvany, LL.D.; Sir Joseph M'Grath, the President of the Royal College of Physicians, Ireland; Sir William Fry, D.L., J.P.; Sir John P. Lynch, Sir William Thompson, M.D., Hon. Treasurer. The Resident Medical Superintendent (Dr. W. K. Carew) was in attendance.

Apologies from F. Conway Dwyer, Esq., F.R.C.S., and G. Jameson Johnston, Esq., F.R.C.S., were noted.

It was reported that since the last meeting four additional patients had been received, making a total of 117; while 25 had been discharged, leaving at present 92 beds occupied. The total number of patients that have been treated in the wards since the opening is 1,600.

A number of accounts for hospital supplies were examined, and cheques drawn in settlement thereof.

The Matron called the special attention of the Committee to the very small number of gifts, both in money, articles of food, fruit, etc., which had been sent in during the past fortnight in comparison to other times. If the public would only remember how the brave men who are treated in the hospital have suffered, while fighting in defence of their country, and many of them in this city, they would not hesitate to send in supplies, such as eggs, fruit, vegetables, potatoes, cigarettes, and slippers. Many of the wounded men have lost their limbs, and, surely, it behoves those who have been so gallantly defended by these brave men to do what they can to lighten the burden and supply the necessities referred to.

The following donations were gratefully received:—The Lady O'Neill, £1; Mr. Cullen, Arbour Hill, £2; Mr. and Mrs. George Sillar, £4 (maintenance of two beds); Mr. O. Wallace, Rathmore, Palmerston road, £3 3/-; A Thanks Offering (per Dr. Mulvany), £1; A Friend (per Dr. Carew), £5.

The Matron reported that she had received a box from New York containing a miscellaneous assortment of gifts for the hospital from the American War Relief Fund. These articles were very gratefully acknowledged by the Committee; but it is trusted that the public will respond to this appeal, and send in supplies, for most people can afford to give something, and the Committee trust that the Matron's request will not fall on deaf ears.

Routine business having been done, the Committee adjourned.

Mrs. G. W. Casson, Miss O'Brien, John M'Bride, Esq., J.P., and John Parkes, Esq., having kindly consented to act, were appointed Visiting Governors for the month.

Payments reported, and the two kind donors were unanimously elected Life Governors of the hospital. Miss Frances E. Murphy, £21 towards building fund account (per Chairman); Mrs. Jane M. Smyth, £21 towards general account.

The Chairman announced that the hospital's banking account was heavily overdrawn, the indebtedness having increased to £9,600, and he confidently appealed for funds to aid in reducing this growing liability. He made a special appeal for contributions of £21, to qualify the donors as Life Governors, or £5 5/- as Annual Governors. Life and Annual Governors of the Royal Hospital have many privileges. They are entitled to visit the hospital at all times consistent with its due order, to recommend candidates for admission, vote for their election, and to vote for the election of the Visiting Medical Officers and the Managing Committee.

In response to the Chairman's appeal, Mrs. Henry Dudgeon kindly contributed £3 towards the building fund account.

The election of patients was then proceeded with. Twenty names appeared on the printed list, and ten candidates were in attendance. All the absentees were certified by Dr. Preston Ball (Visiting Medical Officer) as unable to be present. The following having obtained the highest number of votes were declared duly elected, two for immediate admission to the hospital and two to remain out on a weekly allowance from the funds pending further vacancies in the wards:—Ada Cuthbert, partial paralysis and rheumatism; Mary Thompson, consumption (advanced); Catherine Maher, cancer of the breast; Susan Jane F. Hill, cancer (internal).

The Board were reluctantly obliged to reject many distressing cases afflicted with cancer, consumption, heart disease, hip disease, lupus, paralysis, and rheumatism, owing to want of further accommodation.

The Board adjourned to Tuesday, 15th August, 1916, when an election for male patients will take place.

The Board tender their grateful thanks for the following kind contributions:—John Rafter, Esq., £3; Mrs. Alice Nadin, £1 1/-; Edward Rafter, Esq., Thomas Rafter, Esq., Lord George Fitz-Gerald, £1 each; Miss M. E. Croasdaile, Miss Colvill, 10/- each.

Further contributions are needed to reduce the large balance due to the bank, and will be gratefully received by Sir William Fry, D.L., J.P., Chairman, Wilton House, Merrion road; William Perrin, Esq., Vice-Chairman, Rocklands, Stillorgan; R. Henry A. M'Comas, Esq., J.P., Hon. Treasurer, 12 Elgin road; or by the Registrar at the Hospital.

The Grand Jury at Kent Assizes yesterday made a presentment to the effect that in their opinion all alien enemies should be interned. The Lord Chief Justice promised the presentment should reach the proper quarter.

SPORTING NEWS.

CORK PARK MEETING—YESTERDAY.

The opening day's racing at Cork Park was of a very interesting character, and, while in all the events, except the Lee Plate, good fields turned out, backers had every reason to be satisfied with their experience, since four first favourites scored. The feature of the day's racing was the success of Mr. R. Croker's horses, two of which won races, and Geraldina gave further proof of what a useful juvenile she is by her easy win in the Lee Plate, in which she readily supplemented her Phœnix Park laurels. Dunaille made amends for two recent failures by carrying off the Cork Hurdle Plate from thirteen others.

Mr. T. Byrne's recent purchase, Roman General, was backed with much confidence for the Maiden Steeplechase, for which there were twenty runners. Grief was plentiful, and, after half the journey had been covered, the field was reduced by half. Roman General assumed command after half a mile, and, remaining there to the end, won in runaway style. Backers met with their first reverse when Tootsie, who was in receipt of 14lb. from Herculaneum, failed to cope with the Glencairn colt in the Trainers' Plate. Herculaneum ran in most generous fashion, and when tackled by Tootsie in the straight came away again to win comfortably. Kingstown Pier was in front all the way to the last fence in the Blarney Plate, but failed to resist the challenge of The Fly III. in the straight. Another big field was in readiness for the Visitors' Plate, but punters did not look beyond the well-bred Sprig of Mint in their search for the winner. Odds were laid on the daughter of Spearmint and Palotta, and these were readily landed. Details:—

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Nominations for the Conyngham Plate at the Curragh and the Northern Plate at Down Royal must be made to-day.

Through the fall of Canidius in the Maiden Steeplechase at Cork yesterday, G. Harty broke a collar bone.

Mr. R. Croker scored a dual success at Cork Park yesterday by the aid of Geraldina and Herculaneum, both of which were ridden by M. Beary.

There is a plague of foxes in South Monmouthshire, and serious poultry losses are reported. Owing to the war the Llangibby Hounds, whose country is affected, had few meets last season.

Owners and trainers are reminded that entries for the Galway Meeting, which this year, contrary to custom, precedes the August Bank Holiday, close to-day with Mr. Brindley, 14 Upper Merrion street, Dublin. The value of that popular steeplechase, the Galway Plate, has been raised to 500 sovs.

OFFICIAL SRATCHINGS.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM.)

NEW YORK, JUNE 10.

A prominent South American promoter, who has been touring Europe and the United States in search of pugilistic talent for a coming ring tournament in Buenos Ayres, telegraphs that during his recent trip to France he offered Georges Carpentier, the French champion, something like $100,000 for two bouts, with a further percentage of the gate receipts, for the French Red Cross Fund. He secured the official consent of the French authorities for three months' furlough for Carpentier, but when he made his offer to the pugilist the latter replied—"No, I do not fight for money now, but for France. When the war ends, if I survive, I will fight in your country, but not before."

NEWMARKET MEETING—YESTERDAY.

CAMBRIDGESHIRE HUNT PLATE. SILVER TAG'S GOOD PERFORMANCE.

The Second Extra Meeting at Newmarket attracted an excellent attendance, although the crowd both inside and outside the enclosures was very largely composed of the military element. The weather was fine throughout, and the racing quite interesting.

Ruined by a wretched start, which destroyed the winning prospects of both Serapis and Volta, the issue of the Chesterfield Course Stakes always rested between Trinity Square and Dulce Domum, and the last-named, who had not been raced since splitting a pastern last season, defeated the sharp Beckhampton sprinter somewhat easily in very fast time. When holding a lead of his opponents in the Windsor Stakes Call o' the Wild stumbled and split a pastern, and in a strenuous finish Valais defeated Flaming Fire, who apparently did not relish the pace.

Roubaix, the crack Middleham two-year-old, suffered at the start for the Auction Stakes, but it is conceivable that he would not have beaten Farivale in any circumstances, as the last-named was running away from his field at the finish of the race.

The best performance of the afternoon was registered by Silver Tag in annexing the Cambridgeshire Hunt Plate under the maximum weight, and conceding 18lb. to the useful Polystome, and an easy beating to a number of quite smart handicappers. Russley ran disappointingly, but both Ali Bey and Sir Dighton performed up to their reputation, and will assuredly win at an early date.

Capital took the Welter Handicap, and a smart youngster in Crafty Lassie annexed the concluding event, in which she was very soundly backed. Details:—

Many Roads, but only one Tyre—the
GOODYEAR
Have you asked yourself why, wherever you go, whether town or country, you see an increasing number of cars fitted with Goodyear All-Weather Tread Tyres?
When you know that Goodyear tyres cost more than most other tyres, perhaps you are surprised to see so many London taxis fitted with them.
These taxi tyres are not sold at cut prices, but our business with taxi drivers is growing for just the same reasons that our business with the general motorist is growing.
The Goodyear All-Weather Tread has proved by actual test to give
1. The best service.
2. The greatest mileage—consequently the lowest cost per mile.
3. The most efficient skid-resisting grip both on town and country roads.
Next time you are in a taxi ask the driver why he uses Goodyear Tyres, which in initial cost are dearer than most others.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 21, 1916.

Church and Settlement.

The Church of Ireland has thrown the weight of its influence and authority on the side of that growing body of Irish opinion which refuses to accept Mr Lloyd George's scheme for the future government of Ireland. We print elsewhere the resolution passed by the House of Bishops on Monday, and communicated by the Primate to the General Synod at its meeting yesterday. The resolution was not debated, but its reception was a sufficient proof that its terms adequately expressed the views of the Synod. The Archbishops and Bishops of the Church "enter an emphatic protest against the introduction of a new system of administration until opportunity has been given for considering its bearing upon the interests of the Church." They deprecate the attempt to force upon the country a system of government hastily devised and imperfectly understood, while the anxieties of the war preclude that full and frank discussion which is due to proposals of so momentous a character. They express themselves ready, at this moment of Imperial crisis, to make sacrifices in favour of any scheme for the future government of Ireland calculated to unite Irishmen and to secure the blessings of law and peace for them all. But "we are not satisfied, from such evidence as is accessible to us, that the paramount plea of Imperial necessity, which has been urged in high quarters, is sufficiently well founded to justify the hasty adoption of a policy of dismemberment with which no Irishman is content, and which does not give the promise of permanence, of unity, or of the impartial administration of the common law." In this considered and moderate resolution of the Bishops speaks the authentic voice of the Church of Ireland. We have always disliked interference by the Church in politics; but no such interference is involved in this resolution. If anyone should seek to diminish the validity of this protest by representing it as political, let him reflect that the Church in Ulster in the past has been peculiarly identified with the Ulster Covenant. The Covenanters of Ulster have now provisionally accepted Mr. Lloyd George's scheme. The protest of the Bishops gains added weight from the fact that some Ulster Bishops, in subscribing to the resolution, have sunk their views as politicians in order to give free expression to their views as Churchmen.

It is characteristic of Mr. Lloyd George's methods that a situation should have arisen in which it is necessary for the Church of Ireland to enter this protest. Irishmen of all creeds and parties will freely admit that the Church of Ireland has a considerable stake in the country. It would be inconceivable, if it were not the fact, that Mr. Lloyd George has made no attempt of any kind to consult, or even consider, in his negotiations this Church whose interests are vitally touched by his scheme. On moral and on material grounds the Church must look with dislike and suspicion upon "a policy of dismemberment." The Church, as the name which she bears proclaims, asserts the emphasis of a united Ireland. Her Primate is the Primate of All Ireland; her National Cathedral, situated in the metropolitan city, draws its Chapter from every diocese. "A policy of dismemberment" could not fail to lessen the spiritual impact of the Church upon her people in Ireland. That policy, moreover, would create for the Church of Ireland a variety of the most awkward problems of administration. The system of government which Mr. Lloyd George proposes is, indeed, as the resolution says, "hastily devised and imperfectly understood"; but its general outlines sufficiently suggest the extraordinary confusion which its adoption would introduce into the affairs of the Church. Three dioceses would divide their allegiance between Westminster and Dublin. In those dioceses the problems arising out of different systems of administration and taxation, which would be serious enough in the case of dioceses respectively south and north of the dividing line, would reach the point of complete chaos. Questions of Church finance and education would be enormously complicated. The position of the scattered Church of Ireland communities in the South and West of Ireland, living among a majority of a different faith, requires to be adequately safeguarded. Like Gallio, however, Mr. Lloyd George cares for none of these things. He repays that splendid patriotism of the Church of Ireland in the war upon which the Primate touched with justifiable pride in his address to the General Synod yesterday with complete contempt for the Church's interests.

The Church of Ireland's protest will be endorsed and welcomed not alone by the whole body of Southern Unionists, but also, we are satisfied, by many Ulster Unionists, and, if the Nationalist Press affords a trustworthy index, by an increasing volume of responsible and independent Nationalist opinion. The ardent and self-sacrificing patriotism of the Church of Ireland is admitted on all sides. Its refusal, therefore, to accept, as well-founded enough to justify the adoption of the policy of dismemberment, that paramount plea of Imperial necessity which Mr. Lloyd George urges will harden the growing conviction that the whole basis on which the case for his settlement reposes is unsound. Very few people in Ireland seriously believe by this time in the reality of this Imperial necessity with which Mr. Lloyd George proposes to bludgeon us into settlement. There is a growing suspicion that it is merely for the sake of the beaux yeux of the Clan-na-Gael that we are asked to accept a scheme "with which," as the resolution of the Bishops says with perfect truth, "no Irishman is content." The general resentment against the matter of his proposals is aggravated by the manner in which he is attempting to enforce their acceptance in Ireland. In his contemptuous treatment of the Church of Ireland a wide variety of interests in Ireland will see a further example of the methods which he has applied to them. The Church's dignified but emphatic protest against a situation in which its case will secure the sympathy of all those sections of Irish opinion whose feelings Mr. Lloyd George's scheme outrages is timely. There seems to be no doubt that acute divisions of opinion have arisen in the Cabinet in connection with his negotiations. The manner in which he has conducted these negotiations in Ireland certainly does not warrant us in rejecting the suggestion that he has gone far outside the terms of his commission from the Cabinet. The Church of Ireland's adherence to the volume of protest from Ireland will strengthen the hands of those members of the Cabinet who are concerned to restrain their impetuous colleague, who was commissioned to solve the problem of Irish government with the willing assent of all parties, from aggravating that problem under a conspiracy of silence.

Mexico.

The dignity of the United States required nothing less than prompt rejection of Carranza's demand for the immediate withdrawal of General Pershing's force from Mexico. The demand was couched in such abrupt terms that President Wilson, in the reply which is made public to-day, was constrained to rebuke Carranza for the form of his Note. Moreover, while the Note was in course of transmission, a gruff message was conveyed by one of Carranza's generals to the Commander of the United States force in Mexico, to the effect that, if he moved troops to the south, east, or west, he would be attacked at once. Notice to quit, delivered in such a manner, could not well be accepted by the United States from a man who, in the first place, owes his position very largely to the encouragement given him by the United States Administration, and, in the second place, offers no guarantee that raids into United States territory by Mexican irregulars shall cease. When a party headed by the notorious insurgent Villa made their raid into Arizona it was plain enough that the border was not effectively policed by the Mexicans themselves, and General Pershing's force was sent into Mexico with the object of catching, and punishing, Villa and his rabble. Carranza should have been glad to co-operate with the United States force in a measure for the restoring of order and the punishment of men who had committed an offence against a friendly neighbour. It does not appear, however, that he showed any willingness to assist in this task. On the contrary, he put difficulties in General Pershing's way from the first. Owing to the attitude of the inhabitants, including those who belong to Carranza's own army, General Pershing's position is extremely uncomfortable, if not dangerous. His line of communications is long, difficult, and ill-guarded. His force is not adequate to cope with the guerilla tactics which might be employed by a hostile Mexican army. In view of Carranza's threatening attitude, the position was one of great anxiety, and could not be left unresolved. President Wilson has delivered to the Mexican representative his written answer to Carranza's petulant demand. He has also answered it in another and more practical way—by calling out the entire Militia and ordering vessels of the Fleet to stations off both coasts of Mexico. On paper the States ought to be able to furnish the Federal Government with a hundred thousand men of all arms, fully armed and equipped, with hospital and other service corps, able to take the field as soon as orders are received. The actual number of men available for immediate duty may fall short of that number, but it will be sufficient for the execution of the present plans of the War Department. These contemplate the despatch of militia to the border so as to relieve the Regulars on patrol and enable them to reinforce the contingents already in Mexico. President Wilson, as everyone who is familiar with his policy will believe, hopes that the precautionary measures now taken will be a sufficient warning to Carranza to avoid further provocation. He has no wish to carry intervention in Mexico beyond the point of protection for the lives and property of United States citizens. Many of his political opponents, of course, say that the only measure of protection which can be really effective is a firm and forcible re-ordering, with military assistance, of the affairs of Mexico by the United States. They maintain that this course should have been taken long ago, and their contention seems to gain force from the conduct of Carranza, whom President Wilson's Administration "nursed" in the belief that he would do what was required to settle the country. His return for the help is ungracious.

War Medals.

The prospect is held out to numismatists of their being able to add to their collections a new item which will be distinct from the coins and medals issued under the authority of the State. A keen collector who would keep his collection up-to-date has plenty to do to keep pace with changing coin issues; and, as for medals, the world is never clear for long of wars, small or great, which, according to old custom, are commemorated by the official distribution of such tokens. It is not often in these days, however, that he can add to his collection a medal struck for popular distribution in honour of some great national event. Happily, it has been long, until this present war, since the safety of the people of the British Isles was in question by reason of rival sea Powers, and the inhabitants have not experienced the feeling of thankful relief with which some past generations have received news of British victories at sea. The history of British popular medals gives some help to an understanding of those tides of national emotion. We have not yet the evidence before us to enable us to judge how far the battle of Horns Reef is comparable with the great deliverances which were formerly celebrated by the striking of medals. We do not suppose, however, that the proposal now made by the President of the Royal Numismatic Society will meet with objection. Prizes are offered for the best model of a medal to celebrate the recent victory, and the proposal is that medals after the selected design should be struck under the auspices of the Society, and that profits arising from sale should be given to the fund for the relief of disabled seamen. The artistic aims to be kept in mind are defined by the President of the Society as a combination of simplicity with boldness of relief, and finish and precision in modelling. Numismatists appear to think that there is room for improvement in the artistic standard of the works in which they are interested.

LORD FRENCH'S TRIBUTE TO VOLUNTEERS.

General Sir O'Moore Creagh, V.C., County Commandant of the London Volunteer Regiments, has received the following letter from Field Marshal Viscount French:—

General Headquarters, Home Forces,
Horse Guards, S.W., June 19th, 1916.

DEAR SIR O'MOORE CREAGH,—I should be glad if you would transmit to the various corps which took part in the parade for my inspection on the 17th inst. this expression of my great gratification at what I saw. The ten thousand members of the Volunteer Training Corps who paraded made a most favourable impression upon me, not only by their marching and general appearance, but also by the fact that these men, by their voluntary presence on parade, were giving proof of their desire to serve their country, although they are under no actual obligation to do so. I feel sure that as a body they will keep up the high record which British Volunteers have always led us to expect, and which has culminated in their splendid performances in the present war.—Yours sincerely,
(Signed) FRENCH, General.

LONDON CORRESPONDENCE.

153 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
TUESDAY NIGHT.

Up to the time of writing I have found it impossible to obtain either confirmation or contradiction of the statement which startled readers of The Times this morning to the effect that there was a split in the Cabinet over the Irish situation. Most of those to whom I spoke in the Lobby seemed to think it improbable that, having agreed to employ Mr. Lloyd George as conciliator, Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Long would now repudiate his efforts. But there was a pretty general agreement that, if they had done so, the fault probably lay with the methods which the Minister of Munitions had employed. His plan when called in to settle a quarrel is to tackle each of the disputants separately, talk him into some sort of agreement, and not let him meet his actual opponent until the matter is apparently cut and dried. That plan may serve in trade disputes, when both sides are usually so anxious to get back to work that they will accept almost any proposal that seems to save their face, but it is a dangerous expedient when you are dealing with the destinies of millions of people.

I have pointed out more than once that Mr. Dillon's speech in the House of Commons on the Dublin courts-martial was doing great harm to Mr. Redmond's cause. To-day a leading member of the Unionist Committee states: "If there was a chance of settlement, it has practically been destroyed by Mr. Dillon's speech." The Nationalist leaders do not seem to understand the importance attached to this speech by people here. It so identifies the Nationalist Party with the Sinn Feiners that many people regard it as a fact that the Nationalists sympathise with the rebellion.

Opinion in this direction was signified by a largely attended meeting of Unionists held to-day under the chairmanship of Sir Frederick Banbury. Here the Irish position was talked over, and it was agreed to call a further meeting for Thursday to discuss it more formally. Several gentlemen who attended the meeting said that the true situation in Ireland was apparently not realised either by the Government or the public.

In this connection I may mention that Major Rowland Hunt has placed the following question on the paper for Thursday:—"To ask the Prime Minister whether, in the event of Home Rule being granted to Ireland during the war, steps will be taken to prevent members of the Sinn Fein organisation from providing bases and signal stations on the Irish coast for German submarines."

Except for one or two private Bills, this was expected to be a blank day in the House of Lords. Early in the afternoon, however, the rumour went round that the Upper House would pay its tribute to Lord Kitchener, and that Lord French would be among the speakers. So it turned out, but, owing to the shortness of the notice, there was a comparatively small attendance, and the ladies' galleries, usually so full on an important occasion, were almost untenanted.

After the Lord Chancellor had read messages of condolence received from the Greek Chamber, the French Chamber, and the Russian Council of the Empire, Lord Lansdowne delivered a well-phrased eulogy of Lord Kitchener, in which he dwelt specially upon his wonderful influence in expanding our modest Expeditionary Force into a great host numbered by millions. Lord Kitchener had often told him that he was no Parliamentarian. Yet he had a considerable command of effective language, as he showed when he emerged with success from his meeting with the House of Commons. His tragic death had furnished an impressive ending to a great and noble career.

A short, soldierly figure in khaki then rose from the cross-benches. This was Lord French, who struck a more personal note. His long association with Lord Kitchener in South Africa had given him such an appreciation of his capacity as a commander that he had urged him to take the command of the Expeditionary Force at the beginning of the present war, and had promised, if he so desired, to accompany him as Chief of Staff. This fragment of secret history greatly interested the House. Subdued, but sympathetic, cheers greeted the remark that the finest monument to his memory would be for the nation to imitate his fortitude and concentration.

The third, and in some respects the most remarkable, speech of the afternoon was made by Lord Derby, who, as an intimate friend, took us a little behind the scenes. Nothing could be further from the truth than the public idea that Lord Kitchener was hard, taciturn, and stern. He was, we gathered, shy and diffident, but intensely lovable, as was shown by the life-long devotion of Colonel Fitzgerald, who died, as he would have wished, side by side with his Chief. It was interesting to learn that Lord Kitchener was looking forward with intense eagerness to his visit to Russia. The sea had never exacted a heavier toll from the British nation than when Lord Kitchener, "coffined in a British battleship," passed to the Great Beyond.

There was only a small attendance in the Commons, and Irish members, in particular, were few and far between. Mr. Ginnell, of course, was there, and asked a string of his usual impossible questions without obtaining much information. Mr. Walter Guinness amused the House by asking whether an hon. member was entitled to speak while wearing a Sinn Fein badge, but the Speaker disclaimed any sartorial control, and Mr. Ginnell proceeded with his catechism. Mr. Healy was informed that Mr. Justice Pim had consented to join the tribunal charged with hearing the appeals of Irish prisoners.

The report that Sir John Jellicoe's despatches were on the eve of publication was evidently premature. Dr. Macnamara stated to-day that they had not yet reached the Admiralty. The Prime Minister had nothing to say with regard to the War Secretaryship, and was not asked as to the progress of Mr. Lloyd George's Irish negotiations. He stated that to-morrow he would move a resolution giving expression to the feelings of the House on the irreparable loss sustained in the death of Lord Kitchener.

A Requiem was sung this morning at St. Joseph's Altar at Brompton Oratory for the repose of the soul of the late Hugh O'Beirne, C.B., C.V.O., of Jamestown, Co. Leitrim, Minister Plenipotentiary in the Diplomatic Service, who was travelling to Russia with Lord Kitchener as a representative of the Foreign Office when the Hampshire was lost. The celebrant was the Very Rev. Monsignor Edmond Nolan, cousin of the deceased, assisted by the Rev. E. Cruse, Superior of the Oratory, and the Rev. Bowden. The Requiem was followed by the Absolution, during which the Libera was sung by the Oratory choir. Among the relatives present were Mrs. Nolan Ferrall, Mr. and Mrs. Hankey, Mrs. Monteith Trevelyan, Miss Hilda Trevelyan, Miss Gwendoline Talbot, and Mr. Nolan Ferrall (cousins). The King was represented by the Hon. Henry Stonor, Groom-in-Waiting, and the Foreign Office was also represented.

GENERAL SYNOD.

THE PRIMATE AND THE WAR.

FINANCES OF THE CHURCH.

The annual session of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland began in the Synod Hall, Christchurch place, Dublin, yesterday. His Grace the Primate occupied the chair. There was a full attendance of bishops, with the exception of the Bishop of Kilmore, and the hall was crowded with clerical and lay members of the Synod, while the public galleries were also crowded.

The proceedings began with the reading of Holy Scripture and prayer by the Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, the junior bishop.

The Right Hon. Mr. Justice Madden was nominated by the President to act as his Assessor.

HONORARY SECRETARIES.

On the motion of Rev. Canon Tristram, seconded by the Archdeacon of Clonfert, the Ven. J. K. Latham, Archdeacon of Ferns, was re-elected a clerical hon. secretary.

Rev. Canon Tristram also proposed the election of the Ven. A. L. Pooler, Archdeacon of Down, as second clerical hon. secretary.

The Archdeacon of Dublin seconded the resolution.

Both gentlemen were unanimously elected.

On the motion of Sir John W. Moore, seconded by Mr. H. De F. Montgomery, Capt. R. W. Thompson and Mr. J. A. Maconchy were re-elected lay hon. secretaries.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

The President, who was cordially applauded, then delivered his annual address, in the course of which he said:—

It is with hearts full of thanksgiving to Almighty God that we meet here to-day in peace, as the Synod of the Church of Ireland, after the rebellion which has brought sorrow and shame to our beloved land. We are only beginning to know how widespread and how terrible was the plot, of which our countrymen were the dupes, to hand over Ireland to German frightfulness, and how narrowly we escaped by the Providence of God and the vigilance of our Fleet from the horrors of a German invasion. (Hear, hear.) What a cruel tragedy is represented by the contrast between the Ireland of nine years ago and the Ireland of to-day! Nine years ago in taking over office the late Chief Secretary declared: "You may take my word for it that Ireland has never been in so prosperous or contented a position for the past 600 years," whereas now a wrecked and ruined Dublin, and a damnosa hereditas of mourning and strife is his legacy for those who come after. How different all would have been if only those responsible for the maintenance of law and order had done their duty. (Hear, hear.) The system, indeed, was not at fault, but its administration has broken down in the hands of men whose contemptuous indifference to repeated warnings has borne such evil fruit. (Applause.) The one bright feature in the whole sad tragedy has been the heroism and devotion unto death of our gallant police force and of the soldiers of the King. (Applause.) Our heart's affection goes out in deepest gratitude to them and sympathy with the relatives of those who have suffered or died in our country's cause. (Hear, hear.)

THE DEATH ROLL.

Since last we met death and infirmity have deprived our Synod of many such valued members. Notably the Episcopal Bench has lost three beloved prelates—Archbishop Peacocke, Bishop Elliott, and Bishop Chadwick. Having referred to the loss sustained by the Church by the deaths of these three distinguished prelates, the Primate continued—But while we mourn their absence we welcome with all our hearts the three Prelates who are with us here to-day for the first time—the Bishop of Ossory, and the Bishop of Derry—(applause)—and we deplore the cause of the absence of the Bishop of Kilmore—(hear, hear)—and need I add also that we offer our respectful and most cordial greetings to the distinguished prelate who now occupies the Archiepiscopal See of Dublin. Others also who are not here we remember with sober thankfulness. The late Bishop of Tuam, Dr. O'Sullivan, endeared himself during his long and busy life to all with whom he came in contact. I would also make special mention of my late valued Chancellor, Judge Holmes, whose kindness and help I can never forget, and of one of our honorary secretaries, Archdeacon Colquhoun, who has been compelled, owing to failing health, to sever the happy relationship which has for so many years endeared him to his brother Synodsmen. (Hear, hear.) I welcome to this platform my old and much loved friend, Judge Madden, who has graciously accepted the office of Chancellor to the Diocese of Armagh. (Applause.) Other names will occur to you of comrades who have passed away in days of storm into the calm of the Paradise of God; you will find them mentioned in the report of the Standing Committee.

CHURCH FINANCE.

I have nothing to say on the report of the Representative Church Body that will not be better said by those who will bring the report under your notice, except these two remarks:—First, the Church of Ireland hardly gives due credit to your Trustees—the members of the Representative Body, and, above all, to its Finance Committee, who devote their best financial skill to the management of the property of the Church. They disburse your funds under the absolute control of this Synod. And when amateur financiers who have not their knowledge grumble and complain, most men who have taken the trouble really to investigate the matter know that it is to these devoted Churchmen we owe the solvency and stability of our Church finances. Fair criticism and requests for information on intricate matters of finance are always much to be desired; but I often marvel at the ingratitude of those who cannot see that the members of the Representative Church Body are as eager as outsiders can be to increase the miserable stipends of our clergy, but will not dare to do so at the risk of the Church's future. The Diocese of Armagh most generously voted £600 for the help of those clergy in my diocese who were suffering most hardship owing to the war, and I have had the great pleasure of distributing that generous grant to the best of my ability. I recommend this really practical bit of finance to the rest of Ireland. The second point I would like to notice is that we must not be unduly elated at the large increase in the payment of parochial assessments last year, but must remember that Ireland has been passing through a period of wonderful financial prosperity, and that the farmers especially have reaped a rich harvest, which may not last for long, and that the only sufferers have been the great body of the poorer clergy and others who are heavily taxed on small fixed incomes.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

And now you will not wonder if I devote the time that remains to me to some thoughts that fill my own mind at the present crisis of the world's history. The dread reality of the war has been so forcibly brought home to me, whether sleeping or waking, by the fortnight I spent with our troops in the firing line, and the gratitude of officers and men was so profound for the assurance I brought to them of our services, and in their billets, or in the trenches, of your thoughts and prayers on their behalf, that I cannot but feel it fitting for me, after such an experience, to dwell very briefly on this subject, before we enter on the routine and necessary business of our General Synod. My firm conviction is that, far more generally than we realise at home, these our brothers are conscious of "the eternal issues of the never-dying struggle for the right" in which they are playing so large a part. That these gallant fellows have somehow (to quote the Bishop of Birmingham) "got hold of the knowledge that in them there is something which makes them partners in the eternal purpose of God—they have shown, without telling it very often, that they know this life is not everything." With them there is no despair, but the ever-living consciousness of duty and of victorious hope, while many are turning, as never before, to the Cross of Christ as the only light upon the strange mystery of human existence.

THE CHURCH'S RESPONSIBILITY.

It is only at home that men have leisure to debate the question whether or not Christianity has broken down, and are wondering if foreign missions can succeed, when the heathen must be asking: "Why do the Christians so furiously rage together?" But is it really so? I dare to deny it. We have the recent testimony of one of our Bishops in Japan that even there the war is looked upon as a convincing proof that civilisation apart from religion is not able to save a nation, and that a civilisation of culture which is no longer governed by Christian motives, and which has rejected the incarnation of the Christ as the hallowing of human life is not really Christian at all, and is powerless for the uplifting of the spirit of mankind. The Bishop of South Tokyo quoted last January the popular opinion on this matter in Japan:

TALES OF "THE TRADE."

I.

SOME WORK IN THE BALTIC.

"THE TRADE."

They bear, in place of classic names,
Letters and numbers on their skin.
They play their grisly blindfold games
In little boxes made of tin.
Sometimes they stalk the Zeppelin,
Sometimes they learn where mines are laid
Or where the battle ice is thin.
That is the custom of "The Trade."

Few prize-courts sit upon their claims.
They seldom tow their targets in.
They follow certain secret aims
Down under, far from strife or din.
When they are ready to begin
No flag is flown, no fuss is made
More than the shearing of a pin.
That is the custom of "The Trade."

The Scout's quadruple funnel flames
A mark from Sweden to the Swin,
The cruiser's thundrous screw proclaims
Her comings out and goings in.
But only whiffs of paraffin
Or creamy rings that fizz and fade
Show where the one-eyed Death has been.
That is the custom of "The Trade."

Their feats, their fortunes, and their fames
Are hidden from their nearest kin;
No eager public backs or blames,
No journal prints the yarns they spin
(The Censor would not let it in!)
When they return from run or raid,
Unheard they work, unseen they win.
That is the custom of "The Trade."

No one knows how the title of "The Trade" came to be applied to the Submarine Service. Some say that the cruisers invented it because they pretend that submarine officers look like unwashen chauffeurs. Others think it sprang forth by itself, which means that it was coined by the Lower Deck, where they always have the proper names for things. Whatever the truth, the Submarine Service is now "The Trade"; and, if you ask them why, they will answer: "What else could you call it? The Trade's 'the trade,' of course."

It is a close corporation; yet it recruits its men and officers from every class that uses the sea and engines, as well as from many classes that never expected to deal with either. It takes them; they disappear for a while and return changed to their very souls, for the Trade lives in a world without precedents, of which no generation has had any previous experience—a world still being made and enlarged daily. It creates and settles its own problems as it goes along, and if it cannot help itself no one else can. So the Trade lives in the dark and thinks out inconceivable and impossible things which it afterwards puts into practice.

It keeps books too, as honest traders should. They are almost as bald as ledgers, and are written up, hour by hour, on a little sliding table that pulls out from beneath the Commander's bunk. In due time they go to my Lords of the Admiralty who presently circulate a few carefully-watered extracts for the confidential information of the junior officers of the Trade, that these may see what things are done, and how. The juniors read but laugh. They have heard the stories, with all the flaming detail and much of the language, either from a chief actor while they perched differentially on the edge of a mess-room fender, or from his subordinate, in which case they were not so deferential, or from some returned member of the crew present on the occasion, who, between half-shut teeth at the wheel, jerks out what really happened. There is very little going on in the Trade that the Trade does not know within a reasonable time. But the outside world must wait until my Lords of the Admiralty release the records. Some of them have been released now.

Let us take, almost at random, an episode in the life of H.M. Submarine E 9. It is true that she was commanded by Commander Max Horton, but the utter impersonality of the tale makes it as though the boat herself spoke. (Also, never having met or seen any of the gentlemen concerned in the matter, the writer can be impersonal, too.) Some time ago E 9 was in the Baltic, in the deeps of winter, where she used to be taken to her hunting-grounds by an ice-breaker. Obviously, a submarine cannot use her sensitive nose to smash heavy ice with, so the broad-beamed pushing chaperone comes along to see her clear of the thick harbour and shore ice. In the open sea apparently she is left to her own devices. In company of the ice-breaker, then, E 9 "proceeded" (neither in the senior or the junior service does anyone officially "go" anywhere) to "a certain position." Here—it is not stated in the book, but the Trade knows every aching, single detail of what is left out—she spent a certain time in testing arrangements and apparatus which may or may not work properly, immersed in a mixture of block ice and dirty ice-cream in a temperature well towards zero. This is a pleasant job, made the more delightful by the knowledge that if you slip off the superstructure the deadly Baltic chill will stop your heart long before even your heavy clothes can drown you. Hence (and this is not in the book either) the remark of the highly-trained sailorman in these latitudes who, on being told by his superior officer in the execution of his duty to go to Hell, did insubordinately and enviously reply:—"D'you think I'd be here if I could!" Whereby he caused the entire personnel, beginning with the Commander, to say "Amen," or words to that effect. E 9 evidently made things work. Next day she reports:—"As circumstances were favourable, decided to attempt to bag a destroyer." Her "certain position" must have been near a well-used destroyer-run, for shortly afterwards she sees three of them, but too far off to attack, and, later, as the light is failing, a fourth destroyer, towards which she manœuvres. "Depth-keeping," she notes, "very difficult owing to heavy swell." An observation balloon on a gusty day is almost as stable as a submarine "pumping" in a heavy swell, and, since the Baltic is shallow, the submarine runs the chance of being let down with a whack on the bottom. None the less, E 9 works her way to within six hundred yards of the quarry; fires, and waits just long enough to be sure that her torpedo is running straight, and that the destroyer is holding her course. Then she "dips to avoid detection." The rest is deadly simple: "At the correct moment after firing, forty-five to fifty seconds, heard the unmistakable noise of torpedo detonating." Four minutes later she rose and "found destroyer had disappeared." Then, for reasons probably connected with other destroyers, who, too, may have heard that unmistakable sound, she goes to bed below in the chill dark till it is time to turn homewards. When she rose she met storm from the north, and logged it accordingly. "Spray froze as it struck, and bridge became a mass of ice. Experienced considerable difficulty in keeping the conning tower hatch free from ice. Found it necessary to keep a man continuously employed on this work. Bridge screen immovable, ice six inches thick on it. Telegraphs frozen." In this state she forges ahead till midnight, and anyone who pleases can imagine the thoughts of the continuous employé scraping and hammering round the hatch, as well as the delight of his friends below, when the ice-slush spattered down the conning tower. At last she considered it "advisable to free the boat of ice, so went below."

In the senior service the two words "as requisite" cover everything that need not be talked about. E 9 next day "proceeded as requisite" through a series of snow-storms and recurring deposits of ice on the bridge till she got in touch with her friend the ice-breaker; and in her company ploughed and rooted her way back to the work we know. There is nothing to show that it was a near thing for E 9, but somehow one has the idea that the ice-breaker did not arrive any too soon for E 9's comfort and progress. (But what happens in the Baltic when the ice-breaker does not arrive?)

That was in winter. In summer quite the other way, E 9 had to go to bed by day very often under the long-lasting northern light, when the Baltic is as smooth as a carpet, and one cannot get within a mile and a half of anything with eyes in its head, without being put down. There was one time when E 9, evidently on information received, took up "a certain position," and reported the sea "glassy." She had to suffer in silence, while three heavily-laden German ships went by; for an attack would have given away her position. Her reward came next day when she sighted (the words run like Marryatt's) "enemy squadron coming up fast from eastward, proceeding inshore of us." They were two heavy battleships, with an escort of destroyers, and E 9 turned to attack. She does not say how she crept up in that smooth sea within a quarter of a mile of the leading ship, "a three-funnel ship of either the Deutschland or Braunschweig class," but she managed it and fired both bow torpedoes at her. "No. 1 torpedo was seen and heard to strike her just before foremost funnel: smoke and debris appeared to go as high as masthead." This much E 9 saw before one of the guardian destroyers ran at her. "So," says she, "observing her I took my periscope off the battleship." This was excusable, as the destroyer was coming up with intent to kill, and E 9 had to flood her tanks and get down quickly. Even so, the destroyer only just missed her, and she struck bottom in forty-three feet. "But," says E 9, who, if she could not see, kept her ears open, "at the correct interval (the 45 or 50 seconds mentioned in the previous case), the second torpedo was heard to explode, though not actually seen." E 9 came up twenty minutes later to make sure. The destroyer was waiting for her, a couple of hundred yards away, and again E 9 dipped for the life, but "just had time to see one large vessel approximately four or five miles away."

Putting courage aside, think for a moment of the mere drill of it all—that last dive for that attack on the chosen battle-ship; the eye at the periscope watching "No. 1 torpedo" get home; the rush of the vengeful destroyer; the instant orders for flooding everything; the swift descent, which had to be arranged for with full knowledge of the shallow sea-floors waiting below, and a guess at the course that might be taken by the seeking bows above, for, assuming a destroyer to draw fifteen feet and a submarine on the bottom to stand twenty-five feet to the top of her conning tower, there is not much clearance in forty-three feet of salt water, especially if the boat jumps when she touches bottom. And through all these and half a hundred other simultaneous considerations, imagine the trained minds below, counting, as only torpedo men can count, the run of the merciless seconds that should tell when that second shot arrived. Then "at the correct interval," as laid down in the table of distances, the boom and the jar of No. 2 torpedo, the relief, the exhaled breath and untightened lips; the impatient waiting for a second peep, and when that had been taken, and the eye at the periscope had reported one little nigger-boy in place of two on the waters, perhaps cigarettes, etc., while the destroyer sickled about at a venture overhead.

Certainly they give men rewards for doing such things, but what reward can there be in any gift of Kings or peoples to match the enduring satisfaction of having done them, not alone, but with and through, and by trusty and proven companions.

E 1, also a Baltic boat, her Commander, E. N. Laurence, had her experiences, too. She went out one summer day, and late—too late—in the evening sighted three transports. The first she hit. While she was arranging for the second, the third inconsiderately tried to ram her before her sights were on. So it was necessary to go home at once, and waste whole minutes of the precious scanting light. When she rose, the stricken ship was sinking, and shortly afterwards blew up. The other two were patrolling near by. It would have been a fair chance in daylight, but the darkness defeated her, and she had to give up the attack.

It was E 1, who, during thick weather, came across a squadron of battle-cruisers, and got in on a flanking ship—probably the Moltke. The destroyers were very much on the alert, and she had to dive at once to avoid one, who only missed her by a few feet. Then the fog shut down and stopped further developments. Thus do time and chance come to every man.

The Trade has many stories, too, of watching patrols, when a boat must see chance after chance go by under her nose, and—write—merely write what she has seen. Naturally they do not appear in any accessible records. Nor, which is a pity, do the authorities release the records of glorious failures, when everything goes wrong; when torpedoes break the surface and squatter like ducks; or arrive full square with a clang and burst of white water, and—fail to explode; when the devil is in charge of all the motors, and clutches develop play that would scare a shore-going mechanic bald; when batteries begin to give off death instead of power, and, atop of all, ice or wreckage of the strewn seas racks and wrenches the hull till the whole leaking bag of tricks limps home on six missing cylinders and one ditto propeller plus the indomitable will of the red-eyed, husky scarecrows in charge.

There might be worse things in this world for decent people to read than such records.

THE SALE OF WOOL.

IMPORTANT STATEMENT BY THE DEPARTMENT.

In connection with the recent order prohibiting the purchase and sale of wool, the Department are now informed that, owing to the large requirements for the use of the British and Allied Governments, the War Office have decided to purchase the whole of the 1916 clip of British and Irish wool. It is to be noted that the order applies only to wool of the 1916 clip.

Dealers who have purchased any of this year's clip and paid for it before the order was issued, or brokers who may have made advances to farmers or dealers on the basis of current prices, are required to hold such wool pending further instructions. Each case will be considered individually, and as soon as the necessary machinery has been set up in Ireland the matter will be dealt with on the spot.

Manufacturers who are in need of supplies should communicate with the Contracts Department of the War Office, Imperial House, Tothill street, Westminster, London, S.W., when their requirements will receive consideration. Preference however, will in the first instance be given to firms engaged on military orders.

The Department are further notified that it is the intention of the War Office, as far as practicable, to utilise the machinery already existing in this country for the collection and purchase of wool, and that the necessary arrangements to this end are being made.

UNIONIST WAR COMMITTEE.

The Unionist War Committee meeting at the House of Commons yesterday, with Sir E. Carson presiding, again considered the desirability of the preparation of a new Parliamentary register. After the meeting Sir E. Carson gave notice of the following motion:—"That, in the opinion of this House, it is the duty of the Government, without further delay, to introduce legislation to prepare a new register of Parliamentary voters, and to confer the Parliamentary franchise on all sailors and soldiers who are serving or who have served in His Majesty's Forces during the present war."

FROM "THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY.

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE IRISH NEGOTIATIONS.

The position of the Irish negotiations, says The Times, was the only topic of conversation in the Lobby yesterday. With the return of Ministers to London interest now is entirely centred in the Cabinet, whose proceedings in Council we shall not presume to discuss. The Cabinet met yesterday morning, and it is a matter of official record that only 19 Ministers—quite a pre-war muster—were present. There are two vacancies, and Lord Crewe and Mr. Runciman were absent. The Cabinet have been summoned to meet again this morning, and this is significant of much. It may be added that the efforts to secure a settlement command the support of an important body of Unionists, and that most of those who have approached the problem with mental reservations are now more likely to fall into line.

THE SCHEME OF PROVISIONAL SETTLEMENT.

In dealing with the scheme of provisional settlement of the Irish question, The Times remarks that it has suddenly been clouded by doubts and dissensions in the Cabinet. What seems to have happened, remarks our contemporary, is a complete misunderstanding—perhaps it would be more accurate to call it "a sleep and a forgetting"—inside the Cabinet. Ministers who listened with approval to Mr. Asquith's statement of May 25, who unanimously requested Mr. Lloyd George to act as peace-maker, have suddenly come to the conclusion that they were never really consulted at all. We think it quite possible that they have a grievance, but, if so, they have only themselves to thank. If any Unionist Ministers have misunderstood the situation, it can only be because they have allowed themselves to become a negligible factor in the present scheme of government. In any case, it is a matter which they must settle for themselves with the Prime Minister. All that need be said about it here is that it would be intolerable if the efforts of the last few weeks in Ireland—we are thinking chiefly of Sir Edward Carson's efforts, though we are quite prepared to attribute the same self-sacrifice to Mr. Redmond and Mr. Devlin—were to be nullified by these belated doubts about the responsibility for setting them in motion.

THE WAR OFFICE VACANCY.

The post of Secretary of State for War is still unfilled. The need for an appointment is, however, becoming increasingly urgent, says The Times. There is a mass of administrative detail to be dealt with by the head of the department, and it is hoped that the present stop-gap arrangement will be ended at the earliest possible moment.

THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

Business, says The Times, was more active yesterday, but the tendency was generally weaker. British Government Stocks were steady, but Colonial Stocks were rather easier to obtain. American Shares, of course, showed heavy falls. The Foreign market retained its recent firmness, but Peruvian Corporation Stocks were weak on the latest development in connection with the Guano concession. The number of bargains recorded was 3,340, as compared with 2,890 on the preceding day. The House will be closed on Saturday, July 1st.

SYNOD NOTES.

The circumstances under which the General Synod met yesterday were unique. The Synod had been summoned for the usual date—the Tuesday following Easter week—but on that day the city had not recovered from the shock of the Rebellion, and to hold the meeting would have been, of course, impossible. Owing to the suspension of the postal arrangements no intimation of the postponement of the Synod could have reached more than a small fraction of the members, but few of them had any desire or intention of paying a visit to Dublin under the circumstances.

Many of the members were interested yesterday in searching for any traces of the occupation of the premises by a few of the rebels, but most of these had been meantime removed. It is but fair to state that during the short time of this occupation very little, if any, damage was done to the structure or fittings. Some of the windows have been perforated by bullets, which also left their marks on portions of the interior.

The attendance yesterday was very much larger than had been anticipated. No doubt, the brief nature of the session and the necessary curtailment of the business deterred many of the country members from attending. On the other hand, to most Synodsmen and their families the week at the Synod is an annual fixture looked forward to as a welcome chance from the monotony of the country. Many also were curious to see the city under its sadly-changed aspect.

The address of the Primate, though carefully avoiding any reference to the "Conversations" on Irish affairs now in progress, gave special prominence to the serious state of the country resulting from the late Rebellion. Eloquent expression was given to the loyalty and fidelity displayed by Churchmen to the cause of King and country, and to the sacrifices which they had made as Irishmen and patriots. The Primate referred in appreciative and sympathetic terms to the loss sustained by the Church by the death of the late Archbishop Peacocke and Bishop Elliott, and the retirement of Bishop Chadwick.

The most important incident during the sitting was the Declaration of the Bench of Bishops in reference to the Home Rule negotiations. Many Synodsmen were in favour of a discussion on the whole question being raised in the Synod, but it was felt by the majority that any debate on the merits and demerits of the proposed scheme of settlement would be premature and inconclusive. The Declaration of the Bishops was sufficiently expressive of the feeling of the Synod that the present year was not the time for forcing a settlement which might injuriously affect the Church's interests, without due deliberation.

The views set forth in the declaration were precisely those which have been frequently and recently expressed by the Irish Times. "We deprecate," it says, "the attempt to force upon the country a system of government hastily devised and imperfectly understood, while the anxieties of war preclude the full and frank discussion which is due to proposals of so momentous a character." To this expression of opinion the Synod gave a hearty and unanimous assent.

The reports of the various organisations charged with the administration of Church affairs were rapidly dealt with, and sufficient time was thereby available for the discussion of the Church's Budget, as embodied in the report of the Representative Body. This was introduced by Mr. Maconchy, who displayed his usual lucidity in explaining the somewhat complicated details of the report. The conservative tendencies of the Representative Body in respect to the administration of the Church's funds were cleverly defended by Mr. Maconchy, and the report was passed without material amendment.

Thanks to the very judicious and tactful management of the President, a great deal of practical and useful work was done by the Synod. So satisfactorily was this accomplished that many Synodsmen were tempted to ask whether the time hitherto expended in the annual sessions of the General Synod might not in future be curtailed with advantage.

FIGHTING NEAR BAGDAD.

Yesterday's Petrograd communiqué states:—

On the Caucasian front, in the direction of Bagdad, in the region of Serpul, we repulsed a cavalry and infantry offensive, with heavy losses to the enemy.

PLIGHT OF THE AUSTRIANS.

VON PFLANZER'S ARMY CUT IN TWO.

RUSSIANS IN PURSUIT.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.)

PETROGRAD, TUESDAY.

The Russians have succeeded in cutting General von Pflanzer's Army in two parts, one near the Rumanian frontier and the other in the direction of the Carpathians.

An earlier Petrograd message states:—

In the Bukovina the Russian troops are advancing close on the heels of General von Pflanzer's army, which is now presumably divided. The Russians in their march southwards towards Czernowitz covered no less than thirteen miles in one day.

The Bukovinian river Sereth mentioned in yesterday's Russian communiqué, which is a tributary of the Danube, should be distinguished from the Galician river of the same name.

It is reported that the Austrians and Germans have sent reinforcements to the Russian south-west front from the Italian, French, Balkan, Pinsk, and Baranovitchi fronts. The Germans arrived at Lutsk too late to save their allies, three days after the beginning of General Brussiloff's thrust.

General Kaledin is pressing westwards to the south of Vladimir-Volnski, with the object of cutting the enemy's communications with Kovel, and also towards Avoff, between Vladimir-Volnski and Sokal. This extension of General Kaledin's front, which spreads over eighty miles southwards, promises to result in the junction of his army with the army operating towards Lvoff (Lemberg) from the direction of Brody.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

Yesterday's Petrograd communiqué:—

To-day King George, who was the first to learn of the victory of our armies in Volhynia and Galicia, has addressed telegraphically to the Emperor his friendly congratulations, which are couched in exceptionally warm and cordial terms.

Western Front—On several sections of the front of the armies of General Brussiloff the enemy continues to make furious counter-attacks. According to further reports regarding the fighting in the region to the north of the village of Gadomitchi, on the Styr, and west of the village of Kolki, our troops on The 17th captured 96 officers, 3,137 men, and 17 machine guns. We repulsed by our fire an enemy offensive, which was supported by German elements, near the village of Vorontchine, north-east of Kisseline, seven versts north of the main road from Lutsk to Vladimir Volynski.

According to information just received our troops, having delivered a counter-attack in the region of the village of Rogovitchi, south-east of Mokatchi, repulsed the enemy, capturing 16 officers, 1,200 men, and 8 machine guns.

In this decisive action the clever handling of one of our rifle battalions, which took the enemy both in flank and in front, is particularly mentioned.

This battalion, which formed part of one of the crack rifle regiments, not only put the enemy to flight, but recaptured from him the three guns the loss of which was reported in yesterday's communiqué. Moreover, the battalion took three hundred prisoners and two machine guns.

In the region of the station of Okhotnikovo, to the east of Sarny, we captured a German aeroplane with pilot and observer.

In the region of Gayvoronki and Vreniuvitchiki, to the north of Butchatche, on the Strypa, the enemy is offering a stubborn resistance.

On the extreme left wing the enemy is falling back in disorder, closely pursued by our troops. We occupied the villages of Zadova and Storojyntz Glyboka, on the line of the River Sereth.

On the Dvina front we are heavily bombarding at different points the enemy positions. On the night of the 19th, in the region to the north of Spiaglo, east of Lake Vishnevskoye, enemy forces attempted to approach our trenches, but were repulsed by our rifle fire.

The following note is appended to the communiqué:—

(1) Supplementary reports received give an account of an action of the 10th inst, in which an artillery battery distinguished itself. The report says that when the enemy was thrown out of his organised positions near Okna, south-east of Zalestchiki, there began a precipitate retreat in the direction of Zastavna. Our infantry, encouraged by its success, did not waste a moment, and followed close on the heels of the Austrians, preventing them from holding to the intermediate positions prepared beforehand. One of our regiments advanced upon Zastavna with a battery of horse artillery. The commander, perceiving parties of enemy infantry passing in disorder through Zastavna, while an enemy battery was also fleeing by the main road, and seeing that this battery would inevitably escape, and no cavalry was available, decided to send his gun teams in pursuit. Sixty mounted men, led by their officer and the commander of the battery, Colonel Shirinkine, dashed into the town, and forty horsemen were at once despatched in pursuit of enemy infantry, while Captain Nassanoff, with the other men, gave chase to the retreating battery. The first party, having sabred a number of the fugitives, captured 150 men, while the second swooped down upon the Austrian battery. In this attack Captain Nassanoff captured two officers, 79 men, and 30 horses, four guns in working order, and an ammunition wagon. Enemy infantry, observing the loss of the battery, opened a ragged fire, but the battery was got away by the Russians. The losses of the Russian battery in this affair amounted to a sergeant-major and two gunners killed. Some horses were also lost.

AUSTRIAN REPORT.

Last night's Vienna communiqué states:—

In Bukovina the enemy crossed the Sereth between the Pruth and the Dniester, fighting our rearguards. Near Gruziatyn the enemy with strong forces attempted for the fourth time to break our line. Bitter fighting continues.

MR. CHURCHILL AND THE NAVAL BATTLE.

The Press Association has received the following statement from Mr. Winston Churchill:—

41 Cromwell road, South Kensington,
June 20.

I have noticed so much public comment on my statement about the naval battle that I think it right the circumstances which led me to make it should be known. I went to the Admiralty at eleven o'clock on the Saturday morning to ask for news. When I had finished reading the telegrams I was asked by Mr. Balfour's Private Secretary whether I felt able to give a reassuring interview for the benefit of the neutral Press. I hesitated to do this, but on being pressed by some very old friends at the Admiralty, I said I would consider the matter, and would return at four o'clock. I went away, and consulted two friends of high official position, both of whom expressed the opinion that if I were asked directly by the First Lord I should have no choice but to comply. I returned to the Admiralty between five and six o'clock, and told Mr. Balfour's Private Secretary that if the First Lord asked me personally to give an interview I would do so, but not otherwise. I then for the first time had a talk with Mr. Balfour. I found we were in complete agreement on the estimate that he formed of the naval encounter in that the enemy had been driven into port, and that we were safer at home and stronger afloat as the result. Mr. Balfour then informed me that I should render a public service if I made a statement. I then drafted my communiqué, and left it in the hands of the Admiralty officials to use as they saw fit.

WINSTON CHURCHILL.

ADMIRAL JELLICOE'S DESPATCH.

In the House of Commons yesterday,

Dr. MACNAMARA, replying to Sir B. Falle, said it was not possible to give a date for the publication of Sir John Jellicoe's despatch on the North Sea engagement. It had not yet been received.

PARIS ECONOMIC CONFERENCE.

IMPORTANT DECISIONS.

ENEMY'S TRADE METHODS TO BE COMBATTED.

PROTECTION OF ALLIED INTERESTS.

The Board of Trade last night issued an important memorandum containing "Recommendations of the Economic Conference of the Allies, held at Paris on June 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th, 1916."

The following is the text of the document:—

ECONOMIC CONFERENCE OF THE ALLIES.

(1) the representatives of the Allied Governments have met at Paris, under the Presidency of M. Clementel, Minister of Commerce, on June 14th, 15th, 16th, and 17th, 1916, for the purpose of fulfilling the mandate given to them by the Paris Conference of March 28th, 1916, of giving practical expression to their solidarity of views and interests, and of proposing to their respective Governments the appropriate measures for realising this solidarity.

(2) They declare that, after forcing upon them the military contest, in spite of all their efforts to avoid the conflict, the Empires of Central Europe are to-day preparing, in concert with their Allies, for a contest on the economic plane, which will not only survive the re-establishment of peace, but will at that moment attain its full scope and intensity.

(3) They cannot, therefore, conceal from themselves that the agreements which are being prepared for this purpose between their enemies, have the obvious object of establishing the domination of the latter over the production and the markets of the whole world, and of imposing on other countries an intolerable yoke. In face of so grave a peril the representatives of the Allied Governments consider that it has become their duty, on grounds of necessary and legitimate defence, to adopt and realise from now onward all the measures requisite, on the one hand to secure for themselves, and for the whole of the markets of neutral countries full economic independence and respect for sound commercial practice, and on the other hand to facilitate the organisation on a permanent basis of their economic alliance. For this purpose the representatives of the Allied Governments have decided to submit for the approval of those Governments the following resolutions:—

MEASURES FOR THE WAR PERIOD.

(1) The laws and regulations prohibiting trading with the enemy shall be brought into accord. For this purpose—(A) The Allies will prohibit their own subjects and citizens, and all persons residing in their territories, from carrying on any trade with—(1) The inhabitants of enemy countries, whatever their nationality; (2) enemy subjects wherever resident; (3) persons, firms, and companies whose business is controlled wholly or partially by enemy subjects, or is subject to enemy influence, and whose names are included in a special list. (B) They will prohibit the importation into their territories of all goods originating in or coming from enemy countries. (C) They will devise means of establishing a system enabling contracts entered into with enemy subjects, and injurious to national interests, to be cancelled unconditionally.

(2) Business undertakings owned or operated by enemy subjects in the territories of the Allies will also be sequestrated, or placed under control. Measures will be taken for the purpose of winding up some of these undertakings, and of realising their assets, the proceeds of such realisation remaining sequestrated or under control.

(3) In addition to the export prohibitions which are necessitated by the internal situation of each of the Allied countries, the Allies will complete the measures already taken for the restriction of enemy supplies both in the mother countries and in the Dominions, Colonies, and Protectorates (1) by unifying the lists of contraband and of export prohibition, and particularly by prohibiting the export of all commodities declared absolute or conditional contraband; (2) by making the grant of licences for export to neutral countries, from which export to enemy territories might take place, conditional upon the existence in such countries of control organisations approved by the Allies, or, in the absence of such organisations, upon special guarantees, such as the limitation of the quantities exported.

SUPERVISION BY ALLIED CONSULAR OFFICERS, ETC.

Transitory measures for the period of commercial, industrial, agricultural, and maritime reconstruction of the Allied countries:—

(1) The Allies declare their common determination to ensure the re-establishment of the countries suffering from acts of destruction, spoliation, and unjust requisition, and decide to join in devising means to secure the restoration to those countries, as a prior claim, of their raw materials, industrial and agricultural plant, stock, and mercantile fleet, or to assist them to re-equip themselves in these respects.

(2) Whereas the war has put an end to all the treaties of commerce between the Allies and the enemy Powers, and whereas it is of essential importance that during the period of economic reconstruction which will follow the cessation of hostilities the liberty of none of the Allies should be hampered by any claim put forward by the enemy Powers to most-favoured nation treatment, the Allies agree that the benefit of this treatment shall not be granted to those Powers during a number of years to be fixed by mutual agreement among themselves. During this number of years the Allies undertake to assure to each other, so far as possible, compensatory outlets for trade in case consequences detrimental to their commerce result from the application of the undertaking referred to in the preceding paragraph.

(3) The Allies declare themselves agreed to conserve for the Allied countries, before all others, their natural resources during the whole period of commercial, industrial, agricultual, and maritime reconstruction, and for this purpose they undertake to establish special arrangements to facilitate the interchange of these resources.

(4) In order to defend their commerce, their industry, their agriculture, and their navigation against economic aggression resulting from dumping, or any other mode of unfair competition, the Allies decide to fix by agreement a period of time during which the commerce of the enemy Powers shall be submitted to special treatment, and the goods originating in their countries shall be subjected either to prohibitions or to a special régime of an effective character. The Allies will determine by agreement, through diplomatic channels, the special conditions to be imposed during the above-mentioned period on the ships of the enemy Powers.

(5) The Allies will devise the measures to be taken, jointly or severally, for preventing enemy subjects from exercising in their territories certain industries or professions which concern national defence or economic independence.

PERMANENT MEASURES OF MUTUAL ASSISTANCE AND COLLABORATION AMONG THE ALLIES.

(1) The Allies decide to take the necessary steps without delay to render themselves independent of the enemy countries in so far as regards the raw materials and manufactured articles essential to the normal development of their economic activities. These measures should be directed to assuring the independence of the Allies, not only so far as concerns their sources of supply, but also as regards their financial, commercial, and maritime organisation. The Allies will adopt such measures as may seem to them most suitable for the carrying out of this resolution according to the nature of the commodities, and having regard to the principles which govern their economic policy. They may, for example, have recourse either to enterprises subsidised, directed, or controlled by the Governments themselves, or to the grant of financial assistance for the encouragement of scientific and technical research, and the development of national industries and resources, to Customs duties or prohibitions of a temporary or permanent character, or to a combination of these two different methods. Whatever may be the methods adopted, the object aimed at by the Allies is to increase production within their territories as a whole, to a sufficient extent to enable them to maintain and develop their economic position and independence in relation to enemy countries.

(2) In order to permit the interchange of their productions, the Allies undertake to adopt measures for facilitating their mutual trade relations, both by the establishment of direct and rapid land and sea transport services at low rates and by the extension and improvement of postal, telegraphic, and other communications.

(3) The Allies undertake to convene a meeting of technical delegates to draw up measures for the assimilation, so far as may be possible, of their laws governing patents, indications of origin, and trade marks. In regard to patents, trade marks, and literary and artistic copyrights, which have come into existence during the war in enemy countries, the Allies will adopt, so far as possible, an identical procedure, to be applied as soon as hostilities cease. This procedure will be elaborated by the technical delegates of the Allies.

The final recommendation is as follows:—

Whereas, for the purposes of their common defence against the enemy, the Allied Powers have agreed to adopt a common economic policy on the lines laid down in the resolutions which have been passed, and whereas it is recognised that the effectiveness of this policy depends absolutely upon these resolutions being put into operation forthwith, the representatives of the Allied Governments recommend their respective Governments to take without delay all the measures, whether temporary or permanent, requisite for giving full and complete effect to this policy forthwith, and to communicate to each other the decisions arrived at to attain that object.

HOME RULE PROPOSALS.

CHURCH OF IRELAND BISHOPS' RESOLUTION.

PROTEST AGAINST DISMEMBERMENT.

At the annual Synod of the Church of Ireland in Dublin yesterday, the President, at the conclusion of his address, said—I have been asked by the House of Bishops, who held a meeting yesterday afternoon, to read the following resolution that has been unanimously adopted by them, and which I have been asked to communicate to this Synod:—

"That, in view of the proposals for the future government of Ireland which have been made public, and in the exercise of our responsibility as the Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of Ireland, we enter an emphatic protest against the introduction of a new system of administration, until opportunity has been given of considering its bearing upon the interests of the Church. We understood that the settlement of controverted questions of domestic policy had, by common agreement, been postponed until the end of the war; and we deprecate the attempt to force upon the country a system of government, hastily devised and imperfectly understood, while the anxieties of the war preclude that full and frank discussion which is due to proposals of so momentous a character. At this moment of Imperial crisis we are ready to make great sacrifices in favour of any scheme for the future government of Ireland, calculated to unite our countrymen, and to secure the blessings of law and peace for them all; but we are not satisfied, from such evidence as is accessible to us, that the paramount plea of Imperial necessity, which has been urged in high quarters, is sufficiently well founded to justify the hasty adoption of a policy of dismemberment with which no Irishman is content, and which does not give the promise of permanence of unity, or of the impartial administration of the common law." ("Hear, hear," and applause in all parts of the House.)

I have no intention of debating that resolution, but I wish to say to the Synod that the Archbishops and Bishops felt some notice should be taken from the Church, but that it was impossible in an ordinary Synod, and in an open House, to discuss such a question with any prospect or hope of doing any real good in the present crisis. (Hear, hear.)

HITCH IN NEGOTIATIONS.

ATTITUDE OF MINISTERS.

(PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.)

There is no doubt that difficulties have arisen in the negotiations conducted by Mr. Lloyd George for the provisional settlement of the problem of Irish government, and the present situation is somewhat critical. It appears that in Ireland movements have been in progress which somewhat embarrass the action of the leaders on both sides, and that in England there has been, partly from the same cause, some revival of differences of opinion which affect the very basis of the proposed arrangement, a scheme which admittedly could only be carried into effect with practical unanimity. Urgent representations against Home Rule are being made by Unionists in the South and West of Ireland, backed up by some Unionists in the North, who have not responded to the appeal addressed to them by Sir Edward Carson.

It should not be overlooked also that a section of Nationalist opinion attacks the settlement from another quarter by offering vehement opposition to exclusion of any part of Ireland, and Ulster Unionists point to this fact as justifying their own suspicions. An atmosphere less favourable to settlement is thus being created in Ireland, while in England there is threatened a reopening of controversy.

Rumours in the Parliamentary Lobby yesterday concerning the attitude of several Ministers are undoubtedly premature, but the situation is regarded in political circles with some anxiety.

CORK GUARDIANS AND PARTITION.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

CORK, TUESDAY.

At a special meeting of Cork Poor Law Board to-day—Mr. Michael McCarthy (Chairman) presiding—Mr. C. P. O'Sullivan moved a resolution declaring that the only settlement of the Irish question which will meet with the approval of Irishmen is the immediate putting into operation of the Home Rule Act, and that Irish Nationalists will not consent to any division of their country.

Mr. J. J. Goggin, J.P., seconded the motion.

The motion was passed, Mr. Williams dissenting.

A resolution was moved by Mr. J. Lane condemning partition. He appealed to the people in Belfast to reject ignominiously Lloyd George's proposals.

CORK UNIONIST WOMEN.

At a special meeting representing branches of the County and City of Cork Women's Unionist Alliance, the following resolution was unanimously passed:—"That, while we would shrink from no sacrifice in the interest of the Empire, we feel that the proposed measure of Home Rule, if carried, would very seriously affect Unionists in this county, and be disastrous to the best interests of Ireland and the Empire. We consider the proposal at the present time is a betrayal of the pledge given at the commencement of the war and a surrender to the forces of disloyalty."

GREAT OIL FIRE AT MARSEILLES.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAM.)

MARSEILLES, TUESDAY.

A fire broke out on an oil tanker, filled with mineral oil, which was anchored in the Madraque Basin. The watchman on board the vessel was burnt to death. A blazing sheet of oil ran over the water, and set fire to other oil tankers and barges laden with cargo, and to huts on the road along the shore. Troops and firemen eventually got the fire under control this morning. The damage done includes the destruction of the forage stores of the cattle market, three thousand drums of petroleum and spirit, twelve thousand empty casks, and about a hundred boats of various kinds. The cause of the fire is unknown.

GERMAN WAR VESSEL MINED.

A Stockholm telegram states that one of the smaller German guardships in the Sound recently struck a mine off the Falsterbo minefield, says the Christiania correspondent of the Daily Mail. The crew were all saved except one, and taken to the Swedish coast.

THE LATE LORD KITCHENER.

ELOQUENT TRIBUTES IN THE LORDS.

REFERENCE IN THE COMMONS.

HOUSE OF LORDS—Tuesday.

The LORD CHANCELLOR took his seat upon the woolsack at a quarter-past four o'clock.

The LORD CHANCELLOR read messages of condolence on the death of Lord Kitchener from the Greek Chamber of Deputies, the French Senate, and the Council of the Empire of Russia. He said that, no doubt, it would be the wish of the House that he should return suitable answers to these communications.

The Marquis of LANSDOWNE—The messages which have just been read to the House are a suitable introduction to the few words I now desire to say. Since we last met in this House there has happened a lamentable occurrence, which has deprived the country of the services of one of its foremost public men, which has robbed the Army of a chief of whom it may be said that the Army, as we know it to-day, was almost his sole creation, and this House of a member who probably was more widely known and conspicuous than any other peer who sits upon these benches. Your lordships will, I am sure, think it fitting that such an event should not be passed by by us in entire silence. Ungrudging honour has been done on all sides to the illustrious dead. His services, which were long, various, and strenuous, rendered in all parts of the world, have been passed in review, and the national sorrow has found expression through countless channels. It was not only in our great Cathedrals that Lord Kitchener's death was mourned, but there was not a village church in which suitable reference was not made to the calamity which this country has suffered. We can add but little here to-night. Lord Kitchener's name will live in history above all else as that of a great soldier who was able by his personal influence to convert the modest Expeditionary Force which we had maintained to provide for the contingency of operations beyond these shores into a great host, numbered not by tens or by hundreds of thousands, but by millions—the great host which is at this moment fighting the battle of liberty and good faith and upholding the honour of the Empire in a hundred battlefields all over the world.

ONE OF OURSELVES.

In this House we think of him as one of ourselves. He was deeply convinced—he has told me more than once—that he was no Parliamentarian, and he preferred to leave it to others to debate the affairs of the Department he had to administer. But some of us have, nevertheless, upon occasion, been able to observe that he could, when necessary, display a very considerable command of effective language, that in Council he was well able to make his own case, and I believe that he has been known to do so, and not without success, even when he was compelled to use the language which was not his own in that connection. I think we may bear in mind that one of the latest occasions on which he took part in a public discussion was the occasion of the remarkable interview which took place between him and a number of the members of the House of Commons, an ordeal which anyone who has had to attempt it himself will say is a pretty severe ordeal for any public man. From that ordeal he emerged with admitted credit.

THE MANNER OF HIS DEATH.

Of the manner of his death I cannot venture to say much. It is difficult to conceive a more impressive ending to a great and noble career. Whether it was the end which he himself would have desired I cannot take upon myself to say. Some master of our own language will one day describe appropriately the departure of the gallant Field-Marshal, amidst the gloom and fury of the northern tempest, upon an errand which was to be his last. All that we can venture to conjecture—and we do so with confidence—is that he met his end bravely when it came. Truly, it was a great and dignified exit from the stage on which he had played so prominent a part during the long years of his life. My lords, I ask you to bear witness in this House to the esteem in which we held Lord Kitchener, to the regret with which we regard his untimely loss, and to the honour in which we hold his memory. (Cheers.)

VISCOUNT FRENCH.

Viscount FRENCH—I desire to add my tribute to what has been said by the noble Marquis who has just spoken. As Commander-in-Chief of the Army in France, my relations with the late Secretary of State for War was constant, and I am anxious to place on record that no effort was ever spared by him to supply all my demands. I know well the difficulties which lay in his way, not only in providing the necessary men and material for the Expeditionary Force in a war which was not of our seeking, and which has increased to quite unexpected magnitude, but also in the immediate and colossal expansion which the military forces have necessarily undergone. Lord Kitchener faced these difficulties with characteristic determination, and the evidence of the debt which the nation owes him is to be found in the magnificent Armies which are now defending our interests all over the world. It would be idle to pretend that in the past two years I have always seen eye to eye with the great Field-Marshal who has been taken from us. But such divergence of opinion as occurred in no way interfered with the national interests, nor did it ever shake my confidence in Lord Kitchener's will-power and ability to meet the heavy demands which I had to make upon him. Many noble lords in the House can speak with much greater eloquence and much greater authority of Lord Kitchener as a Cabinet Minister. Personally, I prefer to keep him always in my mind as a great and glorious soldier, which I knew him to be. For nearly three years in the South African war I was closely associated with him, and I enjoyed his intimate friendship and confidence as Commander of the Cavalry Division during the first part of the war. I shall never forget the help I derived from his invaluable counsel and support when he was Chief of Staff to Lord Roberts. But it was after he came to assume the chief command, and I accepted a post of considerable responsibility under him, that I learned his value as a Commander in the field and as a leader of men. He inspired us all with the utmost confidence. We relied implicitly upon him to lead us to victory. We knew we were assured of his utmost help and support in trouble and difficulty, and that he would give us the fullest measure of credit in success. I am very fortunate in the possession of many of his private letters, and I could quote numerous examples of the truth of what I say. At that time, and during subsequent years, I became so impressed by his great qualities, and my estimate of him was so high, that when I had reason to believe that I had been selected for the Chief Command in the Field I went to Lord Kitchener very early in the morning, and urged him to see the Prime Minister, and endeavoured to arrange that he himself should take that place, and that I should accompany him as his Chief of Staff. Although at the moment he had no idea of taking over the position of Secretary of State for War, I could not prevail upon him to do this. The nation has, indeed, suffered a grievous loss, and the finest monument they can erect to this great man's memory is to clothe themselves in the spirit of determination and concentration of spirit which characterised his long and valuable public career. (Hear, hear.)

THE EARL OF DERBY.

The Earl of DERBY—I speak for nobody. But as a well-known friendship existed between Lord Kitchener and myself I trust that may prevent the House from thinking I am impudent if I say a few words on the subject. I do not speak of Lord Kitchener as a Field-Marshal, or of Lord Kitchener the Administrator. I speak only of Kitchener—K., as we called him. Kitchener was the best friend I ever had. I have known him for many years. Our acquaintance ripened in South Africa, and during the last few months I do not think anybody was in closer touch with him than I was. And I saw him in a light that very few people saw him in, and in a light which the public, as a whole, could hardly realise existed. He was supposed to be hard, austere, stern, by the general public, and I never knew a worse estimate of a man's character. He was shy—more shy than people imagined—and always diffident about himself. One little incident I should like to recall. It must have been about fifteen months ago that I saw him in his room at the War Office, and he then said:—"I wish you could tell me what I am doing wrong." When I expressed my surprise he added: "I feel that there is something more I ought to do for the country. I am doing all I can, and yet I feel that I am still leaving much undone." He was a man who inspired the greatest possible affection among his friends. I hope your lordships will forgive me if I refer to one particular friendship which stands out in Lord Kitchener's life—the friendship of Colonel Fitzgerald, his Private Secretary. If ever a man gave up the whole of his life to the service of another Colonel Fitzgerald was that man. He gave up his life to Lord Kitchener. If we may question whether the end of Lord Kitchener was the one he himself would have desired, it is absolutely certain that Colonel Fitzgerald met the death he would have asked for—side by side with the man he had served so faithfully throughout his military career. When I look back upon my friendship with Lord Kitchener, curiously enough, two days come back to my memory. Those were two days in the last week of his life. Less than a week before he died I had been dining alone with him, and after dinner he talked, not of war, but of all those matters which interested him so much in what I may call his private life—about Broome, the place which, as the noble marquis has said, he was so devoted to, his china, of his life after the war, of his trip to Russia, which he was looking forward to with the keenness of a schoolboy going for a holiday. That was a talk I shall never forget. Then three days later came the meeting with the members of the House of Commons, which, I think, I was the only member of your lordships' House privileged to be present at. I was present when the suggestion was made to him that he should meet the members of the House. There was no hesitation whatever as to what his answer should be. The moment it was proposed he at once said "Of course," but he made the condition that he should not meet the members of Parliament until his salary had been discussed, "Because," he said, "I am not going to be told I attempted to burke discussion." I was present at that meeting, and I candidly confess that, although I had no doubt in my own mind as to the great value of such a meeting, I did have some doubt as to how far he, a non-Parliamentarian, would be able to deal with the questions which all of us who have been conversant with election matters know, to a certain extent, how to deal with. But I need not have doubted. I might have known him better. That meeting has been kept strictly secret. I am not going for a moment to break the veil of secrecy, but I think I can say without hesitation that when he left the room where he had been questioned by over 200 members of Parliament for a considerable time he left behind him a feeling with regard to himself amongst members of Parliament that anybody in any position might be proud to possess. Little did we realise then that he was really writing the last chapter of a busy life. It is almost unbelievable to think how complete was his goodbye then to the nation, through its representatives. He said goodbye to his King, and the next day goodbye to his beloved Broome, and the day after that to Sir John Jellicoe and the Grand Fleet. Then came the end. There was no question of a presentiment whatsoever. I only mention this because I feel that, like his great military chief, Lord Roberts, it was really what he would have wished. Lord Roberts died after visiting his beloved Indian troops, within sound of the guns. Lord Kitchener said goodbye to the nation, and said goodbye to it at a moment when he left the whole machinery of the great armies that he created in running order, and when it only required the skilled engineers to keep going—his work. It was really as if Providence in Its wisdom had given him the rest which he would never have given himself. My lords, with the memory of a great naval battle fresh in our minds we must all realise how rich a harvest of death the sea has reaped. These isles from time immemorial have always paid a heavy toll to the sea for our insular security. But, speaking as a friend of a friend, I can say that the sea never exacted a heavier toll than when Lord Kitchener, coffined in a British man-of-war, passed to the Great Beyond. (Cheers.)

The House adjourned at 5 o'clock.

Mr. ASQUITH, rising immediately after questions, in the House of Commons yesterday, said—The country and the Empire have sustained an irreparable loss by the death of Lord Kitchener, and I have to give notice that to-morrow I shall move a resolution which I am sure will express all our feelings on the subject. (Hear, hear.)

The SPEAKER announced that he had received certain resolutions passed by representative Assemblies in foreign States relative to the same event.

WESTERN FIELD OF WAR.

MINING OPERATIONS ON BRITISH FRONT.

The situation in the Western field of war has been unusually quiet, except for some mining operations on the British front and artillery bombardments in the region of Verdun.

BRITISH OFFICIAL.

Last night's British communiqué:—

The principal feature of the last twenty-four hours has been mining activity, combined with some bombardment by both sides, in the Loos sector, where we have exploded two mines, and the enemy one. One of our mines is believed to have been fired with good effect against a hostile gallery, where work was in progress at the time. The hostile mine destroyed a short length of our trenches. We have occupied the crater. Last night, in the same centre, our troops surprised, and bombed, a large hostile working party, and inflicted numerous casualties. There has been also some artillery and trench-mortar activity about Angres and Vimy. Otherwise the day has passed quietly.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

Yesterday afternoon's French communiqué:—

On the right bank of the Meuse the Germans made three attempts in the course of the night on our positions to the north-west of Hill 321. All these attempts were shattered by our machine-gun and curtain fire.

The bombardment was intense in the region of the Bois de Vaux, as well as in the sector of Chattancourt.

In the Vosges a surprise attack directed by the enemy against an advanced sap south of Than failed.

Last night's communiqué:—

There is no event of importance to report on the whole front, apart from a somewhat lively artillery duel in the region to the south of Vaux Fort.

GERMAN OFFICIAL.

Western Theatre of War.—The situation is generally unchanged. There were successful German patrol surprises near Beauviaignes and Niederaspach. Our airmen heavily bombed military works at Bergon, near Dunkirk and Souilly, south-west of Verdun.

UNITED STATES AND MEXICO.

SHARP REPLY TO CARRANZA NOTE.

(REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY.

The American Note in reply to Mexico flatly rejects President Carranza's demand for the withdrawal of the United States troops from Mexico, and rebukes the Carranza Government for the discourteous tone and temper of its last communication.

The Note has been handed to the Mexican Ambassador

IRISH QUESTIONS.

GENERAL MAXWELL AND THE BISHOP OF LIMERICK.

In reply to Mr. Ginnell in the House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. ASQUITH said that General Maxwell's communications with the Bishop of Limerick were perfectly proper and judicious, and he had nothing to add to them.

PROFESSOR MACNEILL.

Mr. ASQUITH informed Mr. Ginnell that twelve charges were made against Professor MacNeill, and he was found guilty of all of them. Eight were charges of attempting to cause disaffection among the civil population in Ireland, and four were of acting in a way likely to prejudice recruiting.

CAPTAIN PERRY-ASCOUGH.

Captain Perry-Ascough, reported missing since September last, is the son of the late Rev. Mr. Perry-Ascough, M.A., Rector of Brabourne, Kent, grandson of the third Lord Congleton. Captain Perry-Ascough was born in 1876, and served for a considerable time in the Militia, West African Frontier Force, and Special Reserve, taking part in two expeditions in Nigeria and in the South African War. He was gazetted a captain in the Royal Fusiliers a year ago. When last seen, by a brother officer, he was leading his men against the enemy trenches. He passed over the parapet, and was then seen to fall, and since then nothing has been heard of him.

LIEUTENANT CECIL F. N. DRAPER.

Lieutenant Cecil Frederick Napier Draper, Middlesex Regiment, who died on 17th June, 1916, aged 21, of wounds received in action, was the only son of the late Mr. Carter N. Draper, Dublin, and of Mrs. Neville Wells, St. Martin's, Guernsey. He was educated at Radley and at Framlingham, entered the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, in 1913, and was appointed to the Middlesex Regiment in August, 1914. He took part in the early phases of the war until seriously wounded at Herlies on October 21st, 1914. He returned to France in April last.

LIEUTENANT R. J. SELBIE.

News has reached Rev. Dr. Selbie, the Principal of Mansfield College, Oxford, of the death of his elder son, Lieutenant R. J. Selbie, Canadian Infantry. The young officer, who was 24, died from wounds recently received in action.

SPECIAL EXTRA.

MR. WALTER LONG'S POSITION.

Mr. Walter Long, on the testimony of his friends, is one who is taking a strong line in opposition to Mr. Lloyd George's proposals, writes the Lobby Correspondent of the Daily News, not because he dislikes them, as doubtless he does, but because he believes that the present time, when Ireland is so disturbed, is not the time when any settlement ought to be made, or any Home Rule Government granted. With this non possumus attitude, I have reason to believe, Lord Lansdowne sympathises. Mr. Long might push his objections to the point of resignation if a settlement on the lines proposed were happily arrived at. This would not necessarily be a serious matter, nor would it shake the Government. But what is rather deplorable is that at the moment some of the other Unionist Ministers have also intimated their dislike either of any settlement, or of the particular settlement proposed. This makes a cleavage of Ministerial opinion which is, of course, rather serious in the domestic sphere, though it does not follow that it is a "Cabinet crisis," as rumour alleges.

LORD DUNRAVEN ON THE NEGOTIATIONS.

In a letter to the Morning Post dealing with the attempted Irish settlement, Lord Dunraven writes:—"Exclusion, great or small, has always seemed to me the most flagrant violation of history, tradition, geography, and common-sense, and to be a device likely to inflame Irish opinion overseas; but I do not commit myself to oppose it, because primary necessity is provisionally to carry on the King's Government. But I do see many and grave difficulties connected with a settlement based on those terms."

PETTIFOGGING POLITICS.

Discussing Ireland, economies, and the war, the Daily Mail says—At this very moment a recrudescence of the old pettifogging politics is delaying the Irish settlement, and preventing the appointment of a new War Minister and getting on with the war. The public has no sympathy with such politicians; it insists on an Irish settlement, and Mr. Asquith is assured of support if he puts his foot down firmly.

KAISER AT VERDUN.

It is reported from Berlin, says the Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail, that the Kaiser left there on Saturday night for the Verdun front.

GERMAN LOSSES AT VERDUN.

Mr. H. Warner Allen, Special Correspondent of the British Press with the French Army, writing from Paris yesterday, says—Calculations based on the most accurate evidence available, and certainly not over-estimating the German casualties, conclude that the Germans had lost in the battle of Verdun up to June 1st over 400,000 men. Information obtained from prisoners and other sources shows that these enormous losses have had a very serious effect on the German reserves.

GERMANY AND RUMANIA.

From an absolutely reliable source, I learn, says the Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, that a fairly numerous party of Rumanian officers have been visiting the Western German front. Last week they were in Ghent. They did not come within the category of military attachés. They are reported to have visited the whole of the German lines. In Ghent they were entertained by General von Hugel, the military Governor of the district.

TURKISH AERODROME BOMBED.

BRILLIANT EXPLOIT BY OUR AIRMEN.

The Secretary of the War Office makes the following announcement:—

EGYPT.

The following report has been received from the General Officer Commanding-in-Chief in Egypt:—

A most successful raid was carried out on June 19 by the Royal Flying Corps against a large enemy aerodrome about five miles south of El Arish and one hundred miles from our nearest aerodrome. This aerodrome, which consisted of ten large hangars, was located on June 13, and a strong raid was immediately planned, in which eleven machines took part. The first machine to arrive discovered an enemy plane on the ground, apparently about to fly, as the pilot and observer were in their places, with several mechanics at hand. Our pilot descended at once to a height of one hundred feet, and destroyed the plane, killing the hostile pilot, observer, and mechanics. Another enemy plane found on the ground was also destroyed. Of the ten hangars, two were set on fire and completely destroyed, while four were hit many times with bombs. It is presumed that these hangars contained aeroplanes, and in all probability at least five, and possibly more, were put out of action. Our machines delivered their attack from a height of six hundred feet, but, in spite of being under very heavy rifle, machine gun, and anti-aircraft gun fire, they continued the attack until all their bombs, seventy-six in number, were expended.

In addition to the aerodrome, enemy camps and troops were assailed, both with bombs and machine gun fire. We lost three machines in the course of the operations. Of these, one was forced to descend about two miles north of the aerodrome. The pilot, however, finding that escape was hopeless, set the machine on fire to prevent the enemy from capturing it. The second fell into the sea, the pilot being rescued by a motor boat. The third was compelled to land about eight miles west of El Arish. The pilot was endeavouring to carry out repairs, and while doing so he was seen by one of our escorting machines, which at once landed at considerable risk, picked him up, and flew back a distance of ninety miles, to Quantara, carrying two passengers in addition to the pilot—an extremely gallant feat. I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which this attack was carried out.

MAYNOOTH COLLEGE

CARDINAL LOGUE'S ADVICE TO YOUNG PRIESTS.

STUDENTS CHEER BISHOP O'DWYER.

His Eminence Cardinal Logue presided yesterday at the annual distribution of prizes to the students at Maynooth College, preparatory to their dispersal for the annual vacation. There was a large attendance of Bishops, those present being Archbishop Harty, Cashel; Dr. Brown, of Ferns; Dr. Brownrigg, Ossory; Dr. O'Dwyer, Limerick; Dr. O'Donnell, Raphoe; Dr. Browne, Cloyne; Dr. Hoare, Ardagh; Dr. Kelly, Ross; Dr. Foley, Kildare; Dr. Fogarty, Killaloe; Dr. Gaughran, Meath; Dr. Mangan, Kerry; Dr. McHugh, Derry; Dr. Finnigan, Kilmore; Dr. McKenna, Clogher; Dr. Gilmartin, Clonfert; Dr. Naughton, Killala; Dr. Morrisroe, Achonry; Dr. Coyne, Elphin; Dr. Hackett, Waterford; Dr. Mulhern, Dromore; Dr. MacRory, Down and Connor; Dr. Donnelly, Assistant Bishop of Dublin; Dr. Higgins, Assistant Bishop of Tuam, and Dr. Colohan, Assistant Bishop of Cork.

On their entry into the hall the Bishops were received with applause, but it was noticed that the Bishop of Limerick received special attention in that respect, and that the Bishop of Down and Connor also received a hearty welcome.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

When the prizes had been distributed,

Monsignor Hogan, President of the College, proposing a vote of thanks to the Cardinal for having presided, said they all felt sorry to miss from the bench of Bishops several of their colleagues—the Bishops of Dromore, Waterford, and Cork. They missed also very much, indeed, their own Archbishop of Dublin, the Archbishop of Tuam, and the Bishop of Galway, and he hoped they would soon be restored to health. (Hear, hear.) He had to say one word of advice to the young priests who were leaving the College now at the end of their course. He knew very well that they were animated by the very best spirit at the present time; but he wished to remind them, for the last time, that they were expected to be men of zeal, piety, and devotion to duty. They had not come here to be trained for pleasure and for amusement. They had come to be trained to do the sacred work of the Church in the ministry. They were now going to face that work, and he felt, and hoped, that they would justify by the results the training that they had received at Maynooth. The Church more than ever wanted men of piety, zeal, and charity, and of kindliness towards all men. "She does not want agitators," continued the speaker. "She does not want disturbers of the peace. She wishes her young priests to be docile, submissive to authority, and respectful towards all legitimate authority. (Applause.) I look forward, as far as I am concerned, with confidence to the future in their regard, and I have no doubt whatsoever that, although they may have some original notions of their own, time and experience will modify them very considerably. I have only to say that during the recent troubled time I felt, as I feel now, the greatest admiration for the way in which the students behaved. I think it was worthy of themselves, worthy of their sacred profession, and worthy of the College." In conclusion, the right reverend gentleman said he was very proud to be able to make such a good report to His Eminence and the Bishops as he had done in regard to the students at the end of the year. He felt that they were passing through historic and anxious times, and he undoubtedly felt himself very much concerned about these matters. He was very much relieved now at the end of the year that things had turned out as well as they had. (Applause.)

COUNSEL OF PRUDENCE.

Cardinal Logue said it was a very great pleasure to him to be present at that interesting function. The prizes were awarded, not through favour, but as the result of hard work. Every one of the students must stand on his own merits, and merit here was, and must be, real merit. One thing that struck him forcibly was the list of successes at the University examinations. In these examinations they were labouring under very serious inconvenience, and, indeed, subjected to very serious loss. Although that College supplied, he believed, the largest number of students of any one institution to the new National University, they were, in a certain sense, cut off. The University took them in like step-children; the students had permission to take their degrees, but they were placed in an inferior position with regard to the prizes which would fall to their lot had they been put upon a proper footing with regard to the University. In the old Royal the students of this College received prizes, and he thought they showed that they were able to take a leading place amongst the students of all Ireland. (Hear, hear.) They were closed up now in water-tight compartments, and, notwithstanding that, they had, he thought, given promise up to the present that in winning those honours they would soon burst the water-tight compartments. He had great pleasure, on the part of the Bishops, in congratulating the students on the results of their studies for the past year; and particularly he congratulated them warmly upon the good report which the President had been able to give to the Bishops with regard to the whole discipline of the College during the year. He had read that report with the greatest interest and pleasure, because, after all, they must remember that the students of that College were destined for the very highest duties that could be committed to man in this life. They were destined to provide for the interests not only of secular life and secular matters, but they were destined to be of assistance to all those who laboured for a better life, a life that would never end. The best thing in connection with an ecclesiastical College was that the students should, in the first place, attend to piety and discipline and regularity, and all those virtues which were especially ecclesiastical virtues. It was necessary for them to be exercised in the sciences—sacred science especially—and even in profane science, so necessary to a priest who would direct his people; for it was not merely in spiritual matters, but in temporal matters, that the priest's advice is frequently sought. He wished the students a very happy holiday, and he hoped they would prove themselves a source of edification to others. There was just one virtue which he recommended to them during their vacation—that was the virtue of prudence, prudence in word and in act. They were living in very troublesome times, and living amidst confusion and disturbance, and he thought the young Levites, as well as the young priests, should be an example to others in moderation and care, and, above all, to cultivate the virtue of prudence, and to take care that nothing coming from their mouths in the form of words, or from their conduct in the form of acts, should give any disedification or bad example to those around them. He gave them this warning, not because he had any fear for the students—they were now what they had been for generations—for he believed their conduct would be, as in the past, a source of edification and good example to those with whom they associated, and especially at the present momentous time, and that they would take care to show in every way that they were well trained, not only in the sciences, but that their character had been perfectly formed, as became young ecclesiastics. (Applause.)

GENERAL SYNOD.

"It is not," they say, "the fault of your Christianity, but the fault of the so-called Christian nations who have not lived up to it, or who have frankly torn it down as the guide of international ethics." Christianity has not failed, it has hardly even been tried. I am not unmindful of the fact that in our own nation, alas, public and private life has been built up too often on pleasure and profit, and neglect of our duty to others and forgetfulness of God; but at any rate our leaders have never avowedly cast off God as revealed in the person of Jesus Christ—nor, as Professor Cramb tells us, Germany has done—have they elevated the teaching of Odin to a higher level than the precepts of the Gospel.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

We of the Allied nations need surely give no proof to the world that war was not our ambition or our goal. Our shameful want of preparedness is a greater evidence than all the White Papers that were ever issued. And it is no vain boast on our part to claim that we fight not for land or power or lust of gold, and that those who die in the struggle for righteousness are offered on the altar of sacrifice to God and not to Moloch. The Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of Ireland purpose calling the clergy and people to a week of special humiliation and prayer next November during the period selected for a National Mission by the English Bishops. I need not enter into the reasons which led the Irish Episcopate to adopt the line I have indicated. I can only say that to us they seemed most cogent, but we earnestly trust there may be a great turning to God and to Christ on the part of both clergy and people, and the Archbishops and Bishops will leave no effort untried that it may be so.

AFTER EFFECTS OF THE WAR.

But what effect afterwards will all this have upon our own daily life and conduct? How will it permeate our amusements and our business? What principles of morality and justice are henceforth to underlie the relationship between master and servant, employer and employed? It is our duty now as Churchmen to do what we can to prepare the nation to face these problems before the ordeal of battle is over. If the new earth that is to be shall be better than the old order that is vanishing away, it can only be as we bring to bear on all around us the presence and teaching of the Incarnate Christ and of the Spirit of the Living God. After all, it is only from the Gospel of the Crucified One that any ray of light shines above the Cross and suffering of to-day. Not pleasure, and comfort, and ease, and prosperity are the gods that can profit, but to follow in His steps who "gave His life a ransom for many." My own ever deepening conviction is that we in Ireland will lose much of the blessing in national unity and in individual character which the war will bring to other nations, because while we glory in the noble deeds of Irish regiments—the Inniskillings or the Munsters, the Fusiliers or the Rifles—we are leaving these gallant heroes without the help for which they are crying. And they know it and bitterly resent it. Officers and men have told me so in the trenches of France and Flanders, as well as at home. We want to share their glory, but we refuse to share their toil—we shall wish to wear their laurel wreath when the war is over, but as a people we refuse to bear their cross. It is a sorry end to all our boasting that some of these Irish battalions, whose deeds of gallantry will adorn the pages of history, are rapidly becoming Irish only in name, or that certain Irish regiments are to-day only at half their strength, and the men, therefore, have to do twice the work of other regiments by their side. The time for pretence and self-laudation has long since passed. General Friend told us last October that to supply only the wastage in Irish regiments 1,100 recruits each week were needed. I wonder if we are providing 100 at present? Our boasting is but vain, and adds insult to the injury our Irish soldiers have to endure.

THE TRUE PERSPECTIVE.

But I shall close my address this morning with the words of hopefulness rather than with the thoughts of almost despair. Surely all that is happening will lead us to view this life and the next in a truer and grander perspective? Surely it will help us to put first things first, and to realise how trivial and unreal are many of those on which we spend our strength? The distinguished President of the British Association gave an illustration in his inaugural address last September of the power which the revelations of science can exert over a community steeped in the petty conflicts of ordinary life. The incident was this:—An American friend who possessed a powerful telescope one night received the visit of an ardent politician. It was the time of a Presidential election, Bryan and Taft being the opposing candidates, and feeling ran high. After looking at clusters of stars and other celestial objects, and having received answers to his various questions, the visitor turned to the friend: "And all these stars I see," he asked. "What space in the heaven do they occupy?" "About the area of the moon." "And you tell me that every one of them is a sun like our own." "Yes." "And that each of them may have a number of planets circulating round them like our sun?" "Yes." "And that there may be life on each of these planets?" "We cannot tell that, but it is quite possible that there may be life on many of them." And after pondering for some time the politician rose and said: "It does not matter, after all, whether Taft or Bryan gets in." (Laughter.) Happy, indeed, will be the day for the Church of the living God when Christian men of all shades of doctrinal belief will be able to say what weightier questions are at stake than what we have hitherto fought over as if they were essential things. How paltry many of our theological disputes appear when issues that convulse the world are involved, and when our noblest and best are suffering mutilation or death in thousands, by night and by day, that we may live and that the cause of God and honour may not be trampled in the dust. Is there not enough in this to rouse the highest spirit in all of us who profess and call ourselves Christians? Shall we not view life from a grander and nobler standpoint? Will not our ideals be altered as to the relative importance of the seen and transitory when compared with the unseen and eternal? And when we ask henceforth what is our standard of value, what is our estimate of the worth of a man, will not our chief consideration be with what spirit does he endure hardness, and what is his attitude to duty and to God? And you and I shall learn perchance to > Measure our life by loss instead of gain;

> Not by the wine drunk, but by the wine poured forth;
> For life's strength standeth in life's sacrifice.

Forgive me that I have occupied your time so long with the stupendous issues of the present war. It rightly dominates all our thoughts. Even for the future of our temporal concerns its issues are supreme. For of what value is your property, or your investments, or your farm, or your home if German frightfulness should prevail? But please God it will not prevail, and there are no pessimists, at least I met with none, in the "far-flung battle line." And every true-hearted Christian, man or woman, who humbles himself before God in personal confession of sin, and turns to God and to Christ for the inspiration of a newer and holier and grander life, is playing well a soldier's part in this great spiritual conflict, and is helping more speedily to bring about that victory and peace for which we pray:—

> Lift up your hearts:
> We lift them up unto the Lord.

For God is working His purpose out, and the time is drawing near:

> Nearer and nearer draws the time,
> The time that shall surely be,
> When the earth shall be filled with the glory of God,
> As the waters cover the sea.

—(Loud applause.)

BUSINESS OF THE SYNOD.

The Archbishop of Dublin said the Standing Committee had resolved that it would be desirable on the present occasion that the General Synod should transact necessary business only. He, therefore, moved that the standing orders should be suspended, as otherwise it would not be possible to get through the business of the Synod in one day. The passing of such a resolution would enable the Synod to proceed with only necessary business, which seemed to most of the Committee all the Synod could profitably or usefully do just now.

Captain Thompson seconded the resolution, which was adopted unanimously.

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORT.

Mr. J. A. Maconchy moved the adoption of the Standing Committee report, which, he said, raised no controversial question. He particularly referred to a payment out of the General Purposes Fund and £33 6s. 2d. costs incurred in the case of the Church of Ireland and Trinity College. That was a very important question between the Church and Trinity College, and the costs were absolutely and necessarily incurred.

Captain Thompson seconded the motion, which was passed.

WIDOWS AND ORPHANS FUND.

Mr. Maconchy moved the adoption of the report of the Widows and Orphans' Fund and mentioned that during next year questions of interest as to the contributions in respect to annuities to widows and orphans would be considered. In connection with the matter he wished to propose the following resolution:—

> That the Board of the Widows and Orphans Fund, having undertaken to bring forward in the next session of the Synod a bill of which they gave notice for the session of 1916, this Synod authorises and requests the board to pay the temporary increases as set out in that bill, and out of the balance to credit in the increment account of the General Purposes Fund indemnifies the board in respect of any payments made by authority of this resolution.

The Archdeacon of Ferns seconded the resolution.

Canon Lockett Ford said he would be glad to see the income to the widows increased to £60. The fund was able to afford the increase at the present time.

Mr. Maconchy said they discussed this matter at the board, and they put down a larger sum than £5, but they came to the conclusion that it would be imprudent to do so.

Canon Lockett Ford moved as an amendment that the preamble to the resolution be deleted, and that the amount be raised to £60 per widow.

On the suggestion of the President, Canon Lockett Ford changed his amendment to read that the board be empowered to increase the income to £60

Rev. Dr. Seymour seconded the resolution.

The Archbishop of Dublin said it seemed to him an unwise thing to interfere with the decision of the board. It would be impossible to withdraw a grant of this sort from these poor people once they made it. It would be a cruel thing to give the increase for one year and then stop it.

The amendment was declared lost, and the resolution was passed.

Mr. Maconchy said he was sure the Synod would join in the regret expressed by the Committee on the resignation of Mr. F. A. Whitton, the assistant secretary. In every branch of the business of the Church during the past forty years Mr. Whitton's ability had left its mark. He was a wonderful organiser, and a tower of strength in every possible way. The Committee had had under consideration a number of cases of contributors to the fund who had joined the Army either as chaplains or combatants. The Committee felt that all these cases demanded most sympathetic treatment at their hands. Although clergymen serving as chaplains ran certain risks from their war service, the Committee had not asked for additional premiums from any of them.

The Archdeacon of Ferns seconded the motion for the adoption of the report, and it was passed.

OTHER REPORTS.

The report of the Board of Education was adopted on the motion of the Archdeacon of Down, seconded by Captain Thompson.

The Bishop of Ossory proposed the adoption of the report of the Board of Missions, and also moved the re-election of the Committee, together with a proposal to the effect that each bishop should be asked to nominate on the Committee a representative from his diocese.

The Archdeacon of Ferns seconded, and the motion was passed.

The report of the Home Reunion Committee was adopted on the motion of the Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, seconded by Sir Algernon Coote.

The reports of the Church of Ireland Temperance Society and of the Home Mission Society were adopted on the motion of Capt. Wade Thompson, seconded by the Bishop of Clogher.

EXAMINATIONS IN RELIGIOUS KNOWLEDGE.

The Bishop of Killaloe moved that it be an instruction to the Standing Committee to pay to the Association for Promoting Christian Knowledge the sum of £150 out of the balance to credit of the General Purposes Income Account, towards defraying the expenses of the examination held in 1915 of intermediate schools in religious knowledge.

The Dean of Christ Church Cathedral seconded the resolution, which was adopted.

COMMITTEES.

On the motion of the Archdeacon of Down, seconded by the Archdeacon of Ferns, the following committees were elected:—

Standing Orders Committee—The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justice, the Right Hon. J. H. Campbell, K.C., M.P.; Rev. Canon Tristram, Mr. A. W. Samuels, K.C.; the Archdeacon of Dublin.

Legislation Committee—The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justice, the Right Hon. Mr. Justice Madden, Mr. Gerald Fitzgibbon, K.C., and Mr. H. D. Conner, K.C.

Record Committee—The Right Hon. the Lord Chief Justice, Rev. Canon J. H. Kennedy, D.D.; the Right Hon. J. H. Campbell, K.C., M.P.; Mr. W. C. Stubbs, and Mr. A. W. Samuels, K.C.

VOICE OF THE SYNOD.

Colonel Bredin, at this stage, asked if liberty would be granted to propose a resolution deprecating any Home Rule Bill of any sort being introduced into this country until the war was over.

The President—I think you will have to be content, Colonel Bredin, with the general, well-considered, and well-thought-out resolution that I have had the honour to submit to the Synod from the House of Bishops. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Wm. Ireland, J.P., said he wished to make a remark.

The President said he must rule discussion out of order. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Ireland—I wanted to ask a similar question.

The President—I have answered his question. You got up and said you wished to make a remark. That is quite out of order.

Mr. Ireland—I wish to ask a question.

The President—I would be delighted if you asked me in the Bishops' room downstairs when the Synod is over. (Laughter and applause.)

The matter dropped.

REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH BODY.

The election of members to fill vacancies on the Representative Body resulted as follows:—Cashel, Rev. Canon J. White Bell; Kilmore, Ven. Joseph Mayne; Cork, Rev. Canon T. C. Abbott; Derry, Ven. Archdeacon of Derry; Ossory, Mr. Charles M. Doyne; Armagh, Sir James H. Stronge, Bart.; Clogher, Mr. George Knight; Dublin, Mr. John A. Maconchy; Down, Mr. George H. Ewart; Limerick, Mr. Cecil Ernest Vandeleur; Tuam, Mr. Richard J. Kinkead; Killaloe, Lord Clonbrock; Meath, Colonel Charles Pepper.

REPORT OF REPRESENTATIVE CHURCH BODY.

Mr. Maconchy moved the adoption of the report of the Representative Body. In doing so, he said that the form of the accounts was identical with that in which they were submitted last year. The balance sheet showed that the interest-bearing capital accounts now amounted to £8,956,500 12s. 1d., a net increase of £73,370 19s. 11d. This increase was mainly made up of four items—1, parochial endowments, £25,048 14s. 8d.; 2, miscellaneous trusts and endowments, £12,598 12s. 10d.; 3, Widows' and Orphans' Fund, £11,357 12s. 4d.; and 4, Diocesan General Fund, £13,578 16s. 5d. The first three items consisted of funds devoted to specific purposes from which they could not be diverted. (Hear, hear.) The fourth was absolutely at the disposal of the several dioceses. Last year he pointed out that the average increase of the Diocesan General Fund was at the rate of £14,000 per annum. This year the increase was only £500 under that average. The cause of this increase was that the aggregate expenditure for general purposes, an expenditure entirely controlled by the separate dioceses, was less by £13,578 than the aggregate income available for diocesan general purposes. Turning to the assets, Mr. Maconchy said mortgages had decreased by a little over £100,000. During the past twelve years mortgages to the amount of £2,130,000 had been paid off, and the proceeds re-invested at a lower rate of interest. During the earlier months of the year investment was attended with considerable difficulty, which was not relieved until the issue in July of the 4½ per cent. War Loan. The allocation account showed an available balance of £7,442 10s. 2d., out of which the Representative Body recommended a glebe grant of £5 per glebe and a bonus addition of 10 per cent. After provision had been made for this grant, there would remain a further sum of about £3,000 to be disposed of by the Synod. The commutation capital now stood at £191,469 17s. 9d., the interest on which at 3½ per cent. was sufficient to provide for the remaining annuities of £6,486 10s. 9d. charged thereon. During the year £24,700 of capital was released by the lapse of annuities and transferred to diocesan stipend funds. As to the Clergy Superannuation Fund, the Representative Body watched very closely, and not without anxiety, the increase in the margin between income and expenditure. The steady increase in the expenditure on grants brought them each year, he might almost say each month, appreciably nearer to the stage when either the grants must be curtailed or the assessments increased. The expenses of grants in connection with glebes amounted this year to £9,454 8s. 10d. This would show a small increase next year, as the dual system of administration ceased on the 31st December, 1915, and all dioceses would in future share in the standing benefits of the Glebes Act of 1912. The amount received for assessment during 1915 was £97,265 9s. 4d., a sum of £1,300 more than in 1914. A sum of £5,700 was granted last year to poor parishes. During the year under review the income of the Church both from dividends and from voluntary contributions had been fully maintained, and payment of the stipends fixed by the diocesan schemes had been made in full. The assistance of the Auxiliary Fund had rendered it possible to add each year a small sum to reserve, and to keep up the Glebes contributions, but the total reserves were dangerously small in proportion to the capital, and in view of the financial exigencies occasioned by the war the pressure would undoubtedly be more severe during the current year. It was a matter of extreme regret to the Representative Body that the available funds did not admit of any considerable increase in the stipends. The Glebe grant was, of course, in direct relief of the incumbents, and in further relief of the minor incumbents he would suggest to the Synod that the available balance, a sum of £2,850, be applied to augmentation.

Captain Thompson seconded the adoption of the report, which was then taken page by page.

Rev. Lipton M'Cracken urged that the Synod should have invested their redeemed loans in Consols, instead of in the 4½ per cent. War Loan. He said by investing in War Loan Stock they were not really assisting the Government. If they had wanted to do this they should have bought Exchequer Bonds.

Mr. F. D. Carr (Youghal) referred to the assets set out in the balance sheet, and said he thought the Synod should have more particulars of the investments and the amount of interest they yielded. They should have been told how much was invested in War Loan and Consols, and how much they had lost by the fall in prices owing to the war. All their investments should be more particularised, so that they could judge for themselves how they stood.

Mr. Walsh suggested that each security mentioned in the balance sheet should have placed beside it the exact amount of income received in respect of that sum.

On the motion of Mr. Maconchy, resolutions were adopted—(1) Authorising the Representative Church Body to apply the sum of £4,386 11s. 6d., unappropriated balance of interest of General Sustentation Fund for 1915, and also the sum of £219 11s. 7d., net balance of subscriptions to the same fund for 1915, in aid of poor parishes by way of contributions either to the augmentation of stipends or to assessments; (2) to make from the balance at foot of allocation account for 1915 a glebe grant of £5 for the present year to each of the various Glebes under Clauses A and B, and to individual clergymen under Clause C; (3) to give from the balance at foot of allocation account for 1915 to each diocese a bonus of 10 per cent. upon the total amount of the glebe grants, to be placed to credit in accordance with options recommended in the special report of the Representative Body adopted at the Synod of 1915; and (4) to set apart from the balance at foot of allocation account for 1915 a sum of £50 to a fund for the augmentation of clerical stipends.

Mr. Maconchy also proposed that the Representative Body be authorised to make from the balance at foot of allocation account for 1915 a grant of £2,850 for augmentation of stipend, at the discretion of the several dioceses, this sum to be allocated to the several dioceses in the same proportion as that in schedule II. of the Poor Parishes Grant.

The resolution was adopted.

In replying to the points raised in the discussion, Mr. Maconchy reminded the House that the accounts were audited by an independent firm of accountants. Every one of the investments had to run the gauntlet of the auditors, who saw that the interest was brought in and accounted for. The certificate of the auditors, published in the report, showed that all this had been done. It was, he thought, rather late to say that this and that was not clearly shown. Everything was clearly shown, if they knew the right place to look for it.

The report was then adopted.

EXTINCTION OF TRUSTS.

The Bishop of Tuam moved that the Synod should sanction the transfer to the Representative Church Body of the property held by the trustees of St. Thomas's Church, Dugort, in the Diocese of Tuam.

Rev. Dr. Kincaid seconded the motion, which was passed.

A similar resolution was, on the motion of the Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, seconded by Rev. Canon Frizell, passed in connection with the property of St. Mary Magdalene Church, Belfast.

SPECIAL DAY OF PRAYER.

Captain Wade Thompson moved—"That this Synod, realising the present serious crisis in our country's history, asks the House of Bishops to consider the advisability of appointing as speedily as possible a day of humiliation, fasting, and prayer."

The Archdeacon of Ferns seconded the motion, which was passed.

COMPLIMENT TO A RETIRED OFFICIAL.

Rev. Canon Tristram moved—"That this Synod recalls with thankfulness the able and efficient service rendered by Mr. Whitton to the Representative Church Body during the forty years of his service, and desires to express most cordial good wishes for many happy and restful years in his retirement."

He said every member of the Synod was aware that during the past year Mr. Whitton had retired from the office of Accountant to the Representative Church Body. For over forty years Mr. Whitton was an invaluable guide in all the financial affairs of the Representative Church Body. He had been an adviser through many vicissitudes, he had piloted them through many difficult currents, and the present satisfactory state of their finances was, under God, due to the able and expert advice which he had given. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. L. Steele seconded the motion, which was unanimously passed.

LATE DEAN OF BELFAST.

The President referred to the death of the late Very Rev. J. J. Robinson, formerly Dean of Belfast, and expressed sincere sympathy with the relatives of the deceased clergyman.

The Dean of St. Patrick's thanked His Grace on behalf of the members of the late Dean Robinson's family.

It was announced that the numbers present at the Synod were—Clerical members, 166; lay members, 196—total, 362.

The minutes of the meeting having been read, the proceedings of the Synod were brought to a close at four o'clock with the chanting of the "Te Deum," the pronouncing of the Benediction by the President, and the singing of the first verse of the National Anthem.

"THE CLONGOWNIAN."

The present number of The Clongownian is exceptionally interesting in many respects, much of its space being taken up with the distinguished part played by so many "past" pupils in the great war. As the editor very justly claims, Old Clongownians have played a foremost part amongst the gallant Irishmen who have upheld the honour of their country on many a hard fought field, and it is only natural that the toll in dead and wounded should be a heavy one. Over 450 Old Clongownians have up to the present engaged in active service in the Army and Navy, and of these 23 have fallen on the field of honour, five have died on active service, 45 have been wounded, and nine have been made prisoners of war. There is a grand record of honours to Clongownians for gallantry on the field and devotion to duty. Amongst these, six have been awarded the D.S.O., seven the Military Cross, and two the Legion of Honour, while 31 have been mentioned in despatches. The contents of the number include many portraits of fallen heroes and past pupils who have won distinction, and interesting letters and photographs from the front from Old Clongownians. There is, in addition, a complete record of the work of the students during the past year and of the distinctions won in the class-room and the playing field, as well as of the many useful social activities in which past pupils are engaged.

OPERATIONS IN EAST AFRICA.

GENERAL SMUTS'S DESPATCH.

The London Gazette of last night contained a lengthy despatch from General Smuts on the operations in East Africa since he took over the command in February last. General Smuts describes the situation as he found it when he took over the command from General Tighe, and the arrangements which he made for securing the Kilmanjaro area. General Smuts writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of all the preliminary work done by General Tighe in the direction of organisation and preparation for offensive measures. This left me free on arrival to devote my whole energies to active operations, and I take this opportunity of placing on record my appreciation of the fact that the success of those operations is in a large measure due to General Tighe's foresight and energy in paving the way for the expected reinforcements."

The despatch then describes in detail the steps taken, the difficulties experienced in the dense bush, and the waterless areas which had to be crossed. In these General Tighe, General Deventer, and Brigadier-General Crowe (who are specially mentioned), took a leading and successful part. "The result of these operations," says General Smuts, "from the 18th to 21st March was to drive the enemy out of the country north of and along the Ruwu River. Aruscha had meanwhile been occupied by our mounted scouts, who drove off an enemy company in a southerly direction, and thus the conquest of the Kilimanjaro-Meru area, probably the richest and most desirable district of German East Africa, was satisfactorily completed. I accordingly established my headquarters at Moschi, placed a chain of outposts along the line of the Ruwu, and set to work to reorganise my force for the next move, meanwhile concentrating the troops as far as possible in healthy localities to give the men a rest after the hardships they had endured."

General Smuts concludes:—

"It is not easy for me to express my appreciation of the conduct of the troops during these operations. General and Staff Officers, commanding, regimental, and departmental officers, rank and file and followers, British, South African, Indian, and African, all have worked with a zeal and single-minded devotion to duty that is beyond praise. Shortage of transport necessitated the force moving on light scale, and the majority of the troops had no more than a waterproof sheet and a blanket for three weeks on end. Rations at times unavoidably ran short. Long marches in the hot sun and occasional drenching rains were calculated to try the most hardened campaigner. Yet all these hardships were endured with unfailing cheerfulness, and a chance of dealing a blow at the enemy seemed to be the only recompense required."

DUBLIN COUNTY COUNCIL.

The annual meeting of the County Dublin County Council was held yesterday. Mr. P. J. O'Neill presided. There also attended:—Messrs. T. Clarke, J. Collins, A. B. Coyle, W. Field, M.P.; A. Graham, S. C. Giltrap, C. J. Hanlon, J. Mahony, W. McCabe, B. Newcombe, J. O'Neill, and C. P. O'Neill.

Mr. Wm. Field, M.P., proposed the re-election of Mr. P. J. O'Neill

Mr. B. Newcombe seconded the proposition, and it was supported by Mr. T. Clarke.

The motion was passed unanimously.

Mr. O'Neill returned thanks for his election for the eighteenth year in succession.

On the motion of Mr. Clarke, seconded by Mr. J. Collins, Mr. James Mahony was elected Vice-Chairman.

COALHEAVERS' DEMANDS REFUSED.

The Dublin Coal Owners' Association had under consideration at a meeting held yesterday the attitude adopted by the men in connection with the discharge of steamers (they having stopped work without notice, and demanded an increase of 50 per cent. in their rate of pay), and have come to the conclusion that they cannot concede any advance in wages on the very high rate ruling for that work, a rate higher than that at other similar ports. The present demand was put forward on Monday without notice, and while vessels were actually discharging. The demand will be resisted, and while, no doubt, inconvenience may be caused to a number of firms and individuals, the members of the Association think that it is not in the general interest of the city that men earning very substantial wages—wages for unskilled labour greatly higher than skilled artisans are earning—should be granted an advance of 50 per cent. on demand, coupled with stoppage of work without notice. It would not be in the interests of anyone, including the workmen themselves, that such tactics should be successful. The Association request consumers to withhold their orders for the present while they deal with the situation that has arisen, and ask other trades to take any action that might appeal to them as being desirable to assist in placing the labour conditions of the port on a more reliable and satisfactory basis than at present. The Association point out that a wage of £4 or £5 per man for the week is not unusual at the present rate of wages.

DUBLIN AND DISTRICT.

City of Dublin Nursing Institution, Ltd.—At the annual meeting of the City of Dublin Nursing Institution, Ltd., a resolution was passed expressing deep regret at the death of Dr. Charles E. Fitzgerald, oculist to the King in Ireland, who had been for over thirty years a member of the Board of Directors.

Funeral of Master Dermot Seales.—On Monday the funeral of Master Dermot Seales, the second son of Mr. Peter M. Seales, solicitor, Haddon road, Clontarf, who lost his life under such tragic circumstances at Howth on Saturday, where he was spending the day with some of his school companions, took place from his parents' residence to Glasnevin Cemetery for interment. The funeral, although announced to be private, was of very large proportions. The pathetic death of Master Seales, who was only 13 years of age, occasioned widespread regret, and most sincere sympathy was felt for his parents in their great bereavement. His school companions at Belvedere College assembled at the graveside, and paid a last tribute of respect and homage to their little friend and playmate, and their grief was manifest. The chief mourners were:—Peter M. Seales (father), James (brother), Bernard Brady and Thomas Brady (uncles), P. J. Hogan, M.A., Sarsfield Hogan (cousins). Amongst those present were: Very Rev. James Hickey, P.P.; Very Rev. Canon Walsh, P.P.; Rev. P. Hayden, Rev. William Meighan, C.C.; Rev. P. Ryan, C.C.; Rev. G. Turley, C.C.; Rev. Father Fahey, S.J.; Rev. Father Molony, S.J.; Rev. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

COMMEMORATIVE WAR MEDALS.

Sir Arthur Evans's Offer.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It may be news to many that already during the course of the present war some 500 commemorative medals have been struck in Germany with official sanction and encouragement. It is true that many of these do not rise to a high level of art. In many cases we see the result of deliberately falsified information, and of sentiment perverted by the Cult of Hate to such a degree that we actually find a medal glorifying the sinking of the Lusitania! No one, however, can regard the sustained effort to record the services of distinguished commanders in itself as otherwise than a worthy aim. The French have struck some fine medals in honour of the battle of the Marne and of other patriotic achievements. So far as I am aware, however, there is no evidence of similar activity in this country, beyond a solitary piece conveying the gallant assurance that Scarborough, despite the bombardment, is "still undismayed."

It is true that for ourselves opportunities for such manifestations have not as yet opened to the same degree. Our initial unpreparedness and the unobtrusive character of the work of equipment, colossal though it has been, have hitherto imposed, on the whole, a defensive attitude. But, now that brighter omens—both in the West and in the East—are lifting up our hearts, may we not return to the time-honoured British practice, according to which, from the days of the Armada onwards, successes both on sea and land have been commemorated by a long series of appropriate medals? Are we still to leave this whole field of historic record unchallenged to the enemy's lying vaunts?

As President of the Royal Numismatic Society, I beg to offer, as a humble contribution towards this end, two prizes, to the amount of £100 (which would be proportionately divided), for the best model of a medal to celebrate the great British naval victory off the Horns Reef. The medal or medals would be struck under the auspices of the Royal Numismatic Society, and any profits arising would be devoted to the Fund for the Relief of Disabled Seamen. For judging the merits of designs submitted I have secured the valuable assistance of Mr. G. F. Hill, Keeper of the Coin Department in the British Museum, and of Mr. E. E. Maclagan, of the Sculpture Department of the Victoria and Albert Museum. It is greatly to be hoped that a standard may thus be set that should help to purge our medallic and monetary art of its present decadent productions—on which surfaces are worn before they are used, and even our gracious Sovereign is rendered bald before his time! The aim in this case at least will be to combine artistic simplicity with boldness of relief and finish and precision in modelling. Printed details as to conditions or other information may be obtained from the above-named gentlemen, to whom also designs should be sent. Suggestions as to inscriptions are also invited.—Yours, etc.,

ARTHUR EVANS.

ULSTER, HOME RULE, AND THE UNIONIST PARTY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The present position is most unintelligible to one who would naturally expect that our friends, in and out of the Cabinet, would base their policy on promises exacted and given, on sound reason, and recent experiences—and not on apparent panic.

For nine or ten years past Ireland has been to all intents and purposes under a Home Rule Government. Mr. Asquith plays into the hands of Mr. Redmond and the Radicals of England, Scotland, and Wales; Mr. Birrell plays into his hands; Lord Aberdeen is amiable to the last degree, and sympathetic, and clings tenaciously to what the late Under-Secretary, in his paper, read before the Rebellion Commission, pathetically refers to as one of His Excellency's few remaining privileges—the exercise of the prerogative of mercy. Messrs. Dillon, Devlin, Redmond and Co. are flattered, consulted, and given their heads to their heart's content. The Irish Unionists are held of no account. The civil and military officers give advice which is smiled at, and only sometimes acknowledged. An Under-Secretary is appointed (vice Sir James Dougherty, retired) who knows personally nothing whatever about Ireland or the Irish—knows only what he is told by his Radical and his Home Rule friends, and chooses to believe—does not even know as an acquaintance the Attorney-General, whose office in the Castle is separated from his office by only a partition. In short, Ireland is practically under a Home Rule Government. There is a rebellion—to the astonishment, apparently, of those who have misgoverned the country, or did not govern it at all, in any true sense, at the Castle. The rebellion is put down by the strong hand of the military with horrible loss of life to the rebels, the soldiers, and the onlookers, and great loss of valuable property.

Result: "Give Home Rule to Ireland—to all but six Ulster counties. The Castle government has broken down"—although it has not: a Home Rule government at the Castle has broken down—a very different thing. And this is urged even by Unionists themselves! "But would you have the Huns win in the war?" This is a question that should be put to Mr. Asquith and the Cabinet—not to us of Ulster. Let the right horse be saddled. Let Mr. Bonar Law and the other Unionists of the Cabinet say plainly: "We promised to support Ulster, and we will. We will never, never consent to impose Home Rule on any part of Ulster. Do you give in. We will not. If the Huns then should win, yours the responsibility—not ours."

Let Mr. Asquith forget his perpetual self-seeking and vote-catching policy, and do the right thing—at least during the war. We were promised a political truce (a promise broken long ago), and let them establish General Sir John Maxwell, or some other strong man, as Chief Secretary, with ample powers to restrain disorder in Ireland, and instructions to govern the country, not to leave it to the pro-German and other rebels to govern it—to govern it resolutely, justly, with all possible consideration.

There is no reason to fear that the Germans, even with the active help and sympathy of their Irish friends, could win in the war if some such course as this were adopted.

But the present proposed plan—what could it do other than increase the rebellious spirit, and, while pleasing nobody, offend and disgust the loyalists all throughout Ireland—especially those who signed the Covenant, and meant when they signed it to abide by their pledge?—Yours, etc.,

M. E. HIME.

Cluain Fois, Buncrana, June 20th, 1916.

UNITED IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Your leaders on the burning question of home government are worthy of the great cause they ventilate. Will Mr. Redmond give the Unionist Party a chance? Let him view the political situation with an open mind, and take a broad, statesmanlike survey of its possibilities. His partisans seem unfortunately to ignore the Unionist electoral body throughout the three provinces outside Ulster. Ulster is well able to take care of itself, but what about the units outside it? Are they to be lightly disregarded and treated as a negligible quantity, only to be weighed in the balance and swept aside as chaff? They are a dominant force in the country, and, as Mr. Redmond well knows, the country would be the poorer without them. Are they not the leaven that leavens the whole lump? Are they a party one can reckon without?

The Unionist electorate in the three provinces outside Ulster insist on a modicum of representation commensurate with the influence they possess in the country. They contribute more largely to the taxes and upkeep of the State than all the other political parties put together, yet they are drastically excluded from a share in the government of the country. Mr. Redmond, I am convinced, fully recognises this, and he would be wise in winning over such a body to his cause. Let him take his courage in both hands and formulate such a scheme as will at once secure their confidence and win their benediction. Why not frame a scheme for giving representation to the Unionist Party outside Ulster after this manner? In each of the constituencies comprising counties and boroughs elect a Unionist member as an addition to the existing Parliamentary body. The number thus obtained would, with the present Ulster members, form a fair representation. This, in my judgment, would be a simple and feasible reconstructive measure, at once reasonable and statesmanlike.

Home Rule is on the Statute Book, and has come to stay. There is no fighting against it. It is surely wisdom then to face the situation and make the best of it by mutual concession and good-will for the common good of the country. Is it too late to insure such a happy event? It is not outside the region of possibility, and then, and not till then, shall we see the united forces of order a ruling power and the four provinces united as one man for the good of all and the terror only of the forces of disorder.—Yours, etc.,

"UNIONIST."

LOOK AT THIS PART OF THE BAG
when you go into a shop and ask for 'the best' flour.
See the name
"SPILLERS"
It is the original 'best flour' that Ireland's housewives have been buying for close on twenty years.
It is easy enough to imitate the original 'Spillers' Purity' Bag, but nobody can put Spillers' quality of flour into it but ourselves! Remember this and look for the name—
SPILLERS' PURITY FLOUR
You can get it in the original cotton bags, branded 'Spillers,' packed in various sizes from half-a-stone to 16 stones, at any grocer's or flour dealer's.

Exemption will be granted in respect of those securities which are lent to the Treasury under the deposit scheme. KESWICK CONVENTION.

The Keswick Convention for the Deepening of Spiritual Life was opened in Portstewart on Monday evening. Mr. Albert Head presided, and the attendance numbered over five hundred. Canons Weir and Elgin and the Rev. E. L. Hamilton, Bath, delivered telling discourses. Mr. Hamilton's was the first of a series on sanctification. Dr. Montgomery, Belfast, and Rev. David Aiken, Portstewart, also took part.

The Convention resumed yesterday morning at half-past seven with a meeting, at which prayer was offered specially for Ireland. Mr. Stephens Richardson presided, and Canon Weir spoke on access to God. Bible reading was conducted from half-past ten to half-past eleven by the Rev. Graham Scroggie, Sunderland, who spoke on Christian calling and privilege. Mr. Head presided at the midday session, when Dr. Alexander Smellie, Carluke, gave the first of four special addresses. At three o'clock there was a meeting for distinctive teaching on Christian life. Mr. Stephens Richardson presided. Canon Weir spoke on the story of the Prodigal Son. A women's meeting was held later, conducted by Mrs. Head. The day's proceedings concluded with a splendidly attended evangelistic meeting, at which addresses were delivered by Rev. M. Bevan, Great Yarmouth, and Rev. Mr. Hamilton.

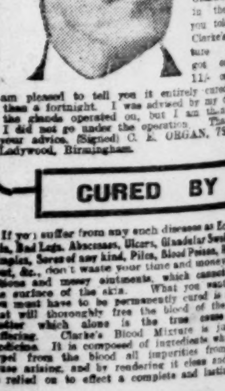
OPERATION AVOIDED.
Our portrait is of Mr. C. E. ORGAN, who writes as follows—



You will remember I was some time ago asking advice as I was suffering from Glandular Swellings in the neck, and you told me to give Clarke's Blood Mixture a trial. I got one of your 11/- cases, and I am pleased to tell you it entirely cured me in less than a fortnight. I was advised by my doctor to have the glands operated on, but I am thankful to say I did not go under the operation. Thanking you for your advice. (Signed) C. E. ORGAN, 79 Hyde Road, Ladywood, Birmingham.

CURED BY

If you suffer from any such diseases as Eczema, Scrofula, Bad Legs, Abscesses, Ulcers, Glandular Swellings, Boils, Pimples, Sores of any kind, Piles, Blood Poison, Rheumatism, Gout, &c., don't waste your time and money on useless lotions and messy ointments, which cannot get below the surface of the skin. What you want and what you must have to be permanently cured is a medicine that will thoroughly free the blood of the poisonous matter which alone is the true cause of your suffering. Clarke's Blood Mixture is just such a medicine. It is composed of ingredients which quickly expel from the blood all impurities from whatever cause arising, and by rendering it clean and pure can be relied on to effect a complete and lasting cure.

FINANCIAL NEWS

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE.

MARKETS QUIET WITH REALISATIONS ON THE RECENT ADVANCE.

DUBLIN, Tuesday Evening.

The recent substantial rise in prices in many directions on the Dublin Stock Exchange has influenced a certain amount of realisations to secure profits, and hence most of the day's price movements were against holders, though in practically no case did real weakness develop as a result. Sellers of active Brewery and Distillery shares preponderated, and buyers looked for and obtained concessions. Guinness Ord. further fell back ¼ to 24½. Dublin Distillers' shareholders appear to be much disappointed at the continued delay or want of decision in regard to the long talked of reconstruction of capital or "Arrears" of Pref. dividends, but they should not lose sight of the surrounding difficulties, created by the recent and present condition of the market for the commodity. In the ordinary circumstances it would be easy enough to formulate a scheme for dealing with the situation of the company and its capital account, but circumstances are very exceptional, and require mature consideration, and not a little anxious thought on the part of the Board as to how best to carry through the difficult task before them of adjusting justly and fairly the Cumulative Pref. prior claims, while not overlooking the desire of the shareholders that the Ord should be given, so to speak, a look in. The Pref. fell 2s. to-day to 62s., and the Ord. closed on offer. The Marconi market was active all day, and closed easy on profit taking sales. The Ord. fell 1s. and the Pref. 2s. 6d., but Canadians rose 7½d. to 9s., and Spanish Trusts realised 6s. 6d. Dunlop issues remain in steady favour with investors. Parent Tyre Pref. were 1½d. higher at 16s., and the Def. were scarce. A good demand obtained for Henry Street Warehouse shares on the satisfaction felt by the recent directorial appointment. The shares rose 2s. to 14s. English Sewing Cotton Ord. rose 3d. to 39s. for a few shares. The price or more was freely bid for irregular lots on favourable report rumours. Irish Times Pref. improved.

LONDON STOCK MARKETS IRREGULAR.

RISE IN CONSOLS.

AMERICANS WEAK.

(FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LONDON, Tuesday.

There was only a moderate volume of business on the Stock Exchange, and the general tone did not improve, the receipt of favourable war news being offset by the continued gravity of the situation between the United States and Mexico. The general appearance of the House was irregular, and although the pronounced weakness of American Rails reflected from the overnight market at New York did not in any important degree extend to other departments, conditions were dull and hesitating, with a downward tendency predominating.

The gilt-edged group was unsteady. Consols rallied ⅛ to 59¼, while the 3½ p.c. War Loan did not move. The 4½ p.c. Loan, however, receded 1/16 to 96⅛. Bank of England Stock rose ¾ to 215¾. Gains averaging ¼ were fairly numerous among Colonial issues. Canadian Fours were active, but finished about unchanged at 87¾. New South Wales and New Zealand issues were fairly active.

FOREIGN BONDS IRREGULAR.

Russians, in the Foreign market, made an irregular finish. The Fours finished ¼ better at 72½, but the Fives, at 90¼, were ⅛ down. Spanish Bonds rose ½ to 86½ on Paris advices. There was a rally of a point to 55 in Greek Old Fives, though the news from that quarter showed no improvement. Chinese issues remained strong with further gains of ½ to 1. Peruvians were offered. Brazilian Funding Fives were back a point to 79½.

HOME RAILS DULL.

Among Home Railway Securities moderate downward movements were fairly numerous. There was a moderate business in Prior Charge Stocks, which was fairly evenly divided, and no feature was developed. AMERICANS FLAT.

Americans were flat from the start, and experienced no recovery. Sales to the Treasury were maintained on a good scale despite the sharp fall which has now occurred from the recent best on the Mexican crisis. The general list marked many falls of ½ to 1½. Southern Pacifics, at 101, were only 1½ down despite the rumour that the Mexicans have seized some of the company's extensions into Mexico. Steels, at 87½, were also 2 down. New York Centrals gave way 3¼ to 107½.

CANADIANS AND MEXICANS LOWER.

Canadian Pacifics were offered back to 184. There were some gains of around ¼ in the Grand Trunk group, and the 1st Pref., at 67¼, was ¾ up. The 2nd Pref., however, shed ½.

Mexican Rails marked some fresh falls of ½ to 1 on the political news. Argentine Rails drooped ¼ here and there on the eve of the weekly traffic results.

LONDON MONEY MARKET.

Bank Rate (changed August 8th, 1914) 5 p.c.

There was an improved demand for loan accommodations owing, it was stated, to increased Treasury Bill sales. The Joint Stock Banks were again charging 4 to 4½ per cent. for both daily and weekly advances, but a certain amount of money was offering in the open market during the afternoon at 3½ per cent. until to-day. The appearance of the Discount Market remained quiet. The supply of bills was small, and bidding was not particularly eager, except for fine short-dated drafts. Russian bills were offering at around 5⅞ per cent.

The New York exchange was steady around 4.76 1/16.

There was rather substantial offering on American account in the Silver Market to-day, and the quotation for spot bars reacted 1/16d. to 30½d. per oz.

On 'Change to-day movements in rates were very varied. Spanish, Russian, and Italian currencies improved in value, but those of Holland, Switzerland, and Scandinavia depreciated.

The following foreign exchange rates were current: New York cables, 4.76⅛ to 4.76⅜; Paris cables, 28.15½ to 28.17½; Amsterdam cables, 11.45 to 11.47; Italy cables, 30.40; Scandinavia cables, 16.20 to 16.45; Petrograd cables, 154½ to 158½; Rio de Janeiro 90 days' bills, 12¾d.; Buenos Ayres, 90 days' bills, 48¼.

INDUSTRIAL SHARES INACTIVE.

RELAPSE IN MARCONIS.

In the Miscellaneous and Industrial Market dealings were only on a limited scale. In the Shipping Section, Cunards weakened 6d. to 87/-. Furness Withys, after some fluctuations, closed unchanged, and the same remark applies to Royal Mails. P. and O. Deferred fell 2 to 330. Hudson's Bays, among Land Shares, closing over the lowest, were 1/16 down at 7 1/16. Borneos, at 13/9, were 6d. better. Forestals hardened 3d. Marconis met realising during the afternoon, and relapsed 2/- to 53/9, while the Preference yielded 1/-. In the Armament group, Cammell Lairds rose 1/16 to 6¼. J. Brown Ordinary, at 26/-, was 9d. to the good. Armstrongs, at 37/-, were 6d. better. Coats did not vary in the Textile Group. Courtaulds left off at 6⅞, which was nearly the best. Bank Shares were irregular, but firmness predominated. In the Supply Section there was another good rise of 3/3 to 67/9 in Harrods. Liptons fell 6d. to 13/3. Lyons gained the turn. Spratt's Patent, at 28/6, was 1/- up. Brazilian Tractions weakened ⅛ to 62⅛.

LONDON MINING MARKET RESTRICTED.

Dealings in the Mining market remained on a rather restricted scale, and conditions were irregular. Kaffirs were hesitating, with occasional heaviness, among Finance Shares, but Rhodesians were inclined to work forward in places, and the appearance of the Diamond section was fairly hard. There was only a very limited volume of business among base metal shares for want of quotations, but the tone was heavy in sympathy with the metals. Copper relapsed another £3 per ton, and tin 25/- per ton. Russian Shares were quiet.

MARKET REPORTS.

GRAIN.

DUBLIN CORN EXCHANGE,
June 20.

Weather seasonable. Wheat—The markets throughout have been of an idle nature, and on the whole prices favour buyers, owing to the weaker tendency and easier American advices. Maize easier, but prices at the same time remain nominal, owing to absence of demand; the only feature is that spot parcels gave way 1d. per cental for most descriptions. Our Corn Exchange to-day was poorly attended, and only usual routine business transacted. The following is the official report:—Foreign wheat—Better inquiry at rather firmer rates. Indian corn—Demand slow at 1/6 decline. Irish wheat—Nil. Oats still lower, with a poor demand. Barley—Nil. Flour dull. Oatmeal very quiet. Indian meal lower, with a quiet demand. Bran and pollard still easier.

Quotations:—Irish Produce—Oats (per 196lbs.)—Blacks, 17/9 to 18/3; whites, 19/- to 20/6. Oatmeal (per 112lbs.)—Pinhead, 21/- to 21/6; flakes, 21/- to 21/6. Flour (per 112lbs.)—Patent, 18/6 to 19/-; firsts, 18/6 to 19/-; seconds, 18/6. Pollard (per 112lbs.)—Fine white, 11/9 to 12/-; coarse, 10/6 to 10/9. LIVERPOOL, Tuesday.—The sharp advance in America, which was chiefly attributed to fear that the Mexican situation would have a serious effect upon the supply of labour for the harvest, caused a firmer feeling here, and, with scarcity of sellers, c.i.f. parcels of Manitoba wheat improved 1/6 per quarter from the worst of yesterday. Maize in forward positions held for higher prices. WHEAT on the spot showed a decline of 1d. to 2d. per cental from Friday's market rates, but more inquiry was experienced. MAIZE—Spot parcels of American mixed were 2½d. to 3½d. per cental lower; River Plate showed 1½d. to 2d. per cental decline from last market day in the moderate business reported. LAW REPORTS.

BANK MORTGAGE APPEAL.

In the Court of Appeal Dublin, yesterday, the Lord Chancellor and Lord Justice Molony, the Lord Chief Justice dissenting, allowed the appeal brought by the plaintiffs in the case of Hibernian Bank v. Yourell from a decision of the Master of the Rolls. Prior to the year 1904 the defendants were indebted to the Bank on a current account of William Yourell in the sum of about £3,000 and on discount accounts in the sum of £3,600. All moneys due by the defendants were secured by a mortgage on certain lands of Ribstown, Killester, and Piercetown, situated in the County of Meath, and the principal sum recoverable on the mortgage was limited to £5,700. A receiver was appointed in 1904. The Bank, however, did not keep a mortgagee's account, and all moneys paid by the receiver, including the purchase moneys of portion of the lands, which were subsequently sold, were credited on the current account, interest being charged on the latter from time to time. The action was brought by the Bank to realise their mortgage, asking for an inquiry to ascertain the sums due on the security in question. The Master of the Rolls, in his judgment, declared that all moneys received by the Bank, whether on sale of any of the lands or in respect of rents and profits paid in by the receiver having been credited as principal in the current account, must be taken to have been pro tanto payments in reduction of the principal sum due on the foot of the mortgage. The defendants admitted that about £293 was due by them on that basis. The Bank claimed that they were entitled to an account, to be taken according to the legal principles ordinarily applicable to moneys received by mortgagees from a receiver.

The Court, by a majority, now allowed the appeal, directing that each party should bear their own costs of the proceedings up to the present stage, the Bank to be entitled to costs of subsequent proceedings.

Serjeant Matheson, Mr. H. Wilson, K.C., and Mr. Leonard (instructed by Messrs. D. and T. Fitzgerald) appeared for the appellants; and Messrs. S. L. Brown, K.C.; Carrigan, K.C.; Russell, and M'Cormick (instructed by Messrs. F. O'Reilly and Sons) for the respondents.

MALAHIDE FORESHORE RIGHTS.

Yesterday, in the Chancery Division, Dublin, before Mr. Justice Barton, the case of the Attorney-General v. Dunne and Farrell was listed on an application on behalf of the defendants, Messrs. James Dunne and Joseph Farrell, farmers and carters, of Yellow Walls, Malahide, for an order for discovery of documents. The action was brought by the Attorney-General to restrain the defendants, in pursuance of an order of the Board of Trade, from taking sand or gravel from the foreshore at Malahide, which foreshore, it was claimed, was vested in the Crown.

Mr. Longfield (instructed by Messrs. William Fry and Son) appeared for the Crown.

Mr. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. L. J. O'Neill) appeared for the defendants.

Mr. Justice Barton directed the matter to appear in the Court list for argument.

PROBATE SUIT SETTLED.

Yesterday in the King's Bench Division, Dublin, the case of Simmons v. Thorp was listed for hearing before Mr. Justice Dodd and a city special jury. The action was brought by Mrs. Martha Anne Simmons to have a grant of administration, with the will annexed, of George Moran, late of Ballybrack, Co. Wexford, revoked, and the will condemned. The grant of administration had issued to the defendant, David Thorp. It was announced that a settlement had been arrived at on the terms that the plaintiff and defendant were to get their costs out of the estate; that two intervenients, William Moran and Margaret Coope, should also get costs; and that the will should be proved in solemn form. Formal evidence was given of the execution of the will.

Mr. Justice Dodd received the consent, and granted probate of the will in solemn form.

The Attorney-General, Mr. Littledale, K.C., and Mr. Swayne (instructed by Mr. W. F. Hearn, LL.D.) were counsel for the defendant; Mr. Powell, K.C., Mr. de Renzy, K.C., and Mr. Hamilton (instructed by Mr. H. H. Langrishe) for the plaintiff; and the Solicitor-General and Mr. Devitt (instructed by Messrs. M. J. O'Connor and Co.) for the intervenients.

JUNE QUARTER

Before Renewing your

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY INSURANCE

HOUSEHOLD INSURANCE POLICIES

Ascertain if you can effect a Saving

Why should the Manufacturer or trader who takes proper precautions and looks after the safety of his employees pay the same premium for his Employers' Liability Insurance as the man who takes no interest and adopts no safeguards?

IF your business is well conducted,
IF you employ competent supervisors and foremen,
IF you have established proper means of protecting your machinery, etc.,
IF your "past claims experience" has been light—

You can probably Save Money.

Because the British Dominions General Insurance Company gives individual attention to each risk, special regard being paid to any features which reduce the hazard involved.

Because though "on paper" the description of trade given on any two proposals may be the same, yet in actual fact the hazard to be covered in each case may be very different. The Company recognises this fact, and by carefully considering the conditions of each case on its own merits and by giving full credit to all favourable details, is able in many cases to make a substantial reduction in the premium.

Because the "Security" given by the Company cannot be challenged. Its reserves exceed £1,000,000.

Because the Company has a specially efficient "Claims Organisation," which not only saves the employer from all worry, trouble, and anxiety in respect of claims, but which at the same time enables it to minimise the "claims cost" of the risk, putting the case on a most favourable footing, and thereby entitling it to "minimum rates" of premium.

If you are a householder you will do well to consider the many risks to which you are subject. Household Insurance Premiums usually fall due on Quarter Days, and many householders renew their Policies from time to time without giving the least thought to altered conditions, or as to whether they are to-day getting the same value as when the policy was first taken out, years ago maybe. You have to consider not only the risks to the contents of your dwelling, but also the serious risk of liability from accidents to servants and third-party claims. If you are the owner, there are the several modern additional risks to the fabric to take into account: the following summarised statement of these risks will assist you to appreciate them.

HOUSEHOLDERS' RISKS SUMMARISED:

It is important to insure against the common risks attaching respectively to each of these, summarised as follows:—

No owner of a house should rest content and feel secure unless his Building Policy covers him in unequivocal language against all the above risks.
